Senate Committee Seeking a Way to Get at the Stored "Private Stock"

Senate Adopts Borah Resolution on Peace Envoys' Shantung Memorandum

By International News Service.

Washington, July 17.—The Senate prohibition enforcement bill will be reported to the full Judiciary Committee probably on Monday, Senator Sterling of South Dakota, chairman of the sub-committee drafting the measure, stated today.

"I believe the bill will go through the Senate easily and with little opposition," Senator Sterling said. "I admit I be was not hopeful, however, for final action until after the peace treaty had been disposed of.

The Senate sub-committee today was giving particular attention to the clauses in the bill which makes it permissible for liquors to be kept in private dwellings for private use.

Members of the committee hoped to reach some plan which would strike at the man who has stored away large quantities of liquor for his own use, maintaining that this is an evasion of the spirit of the law and is unfair to those who were not able to lay in a supply of wet stock. Senator Walsh of Montana strongly favors a provision in the bill which would make these stores taxable and would require the owners to report the amount of liquor which they have.

Appeals of the Anti-Saloon League for more facilities for securing search warrants was not expected to meet with favorable results from the Senate committee. Senator Sterling and Senator Walsh reiterated today that they believe that the proceedings for securing search warrants which are now in force are adequate.

The Anti-Saloon League's request that the punishment for securing search warrants for "malicious and improbable complaint" be lessened also has not met with favor by members of the committee.

BONAR LAW MAY BE CANDIDATE FOR PREMIER

By International News Service.

London, July 17.—A hint that former Chancellor A. Bonar Law may be put forward as candidate for Premier by the new Centre party was contained in the political comment of the Daily Mail today. Mr. Law, according to this newspaper, has not accepted an invitation to the next dinner of the sponsors of the new party because Premier Lloyd George has stated his willingness to attend.

Several fresh recruits have come forward for the Centre party, but, on the other hand, a reaction has set in among the radical Unionists and Liberals.

"If the Premier has decided to throw his lot in with the Centre party the advent of a labor government is brought distinctly nearer," said the Daily Mail. "Is he in or out? That is what the public wants to know."

All of the parliamentary lobby correspondents dealt at length with the formation of the Centre party today, but not all admitted that it was a new political faction. Both the Daily Telegraph and the Chronicle declared that the party was formed some time ago.

Experienced parliamentarians attach no special significance to the fact that Colonel Winston S. Churchill, secretary of state for war, was present at the dinner on Tuesday night on the eve of the announcement of the formation of the party, according to the Daily Telegraph.

The Telegraph describes the new party, but the Standard hails it as a party of the people.

The formation of the new party is believed to involve the overthrow of the Tory element and may result in the recognition of the Moderate Laborites. At the same time expelled politicians declare that London will have to do some guessing before it decides whether the creation of the party has united or widened the breach between Lord Northcliffe, the famous newspaper owner, and Premier Lloyd-George.

WOMEN GIGGLE AT EULOGY OF HENRY FORD

By International News Service.

Mt. Clemens, Mich., July 17.—The facile pen of a magazine writer almost stopped the trial of the Henry Ford $1,000,000 suit against the Chicago Tribune today when a lawyer read a vivid description of Ford, written by John Reed for the Metropolitan Magazine in 1916. The reading of the article took most of the morning session.

As the article referred to Ford's "well-browned complexion," his "wavy silver locks" and his "Yankee nose," women in the courtroom giggled, men laughed outright, and Ford, himself, reddened a bit and held up his index finger as a signal to the reader to stop.

The article was a eulogy of the Ford plant, discussing the Ford educational system, the treatment of employes, and was mocked up with many bolstering anecdotes. In it Ford asserted his belief that universal military training would never come about.

After the reading of the article Attorney Stevenson resumed his questioning of Ford.

"Did you say, 'The country is rotten and the flag rotten?'" he asked.

"No," Ford answered.

"Did you say that the 'American flag will be flying on my plant until the war ends, then it will be taken down and a world flag will flutter?'"

"Mr. Wood said that," was Ford's reply.

"You couldn't write like that, could you?" Stevenson said, referring to the Reed article just read.

"No," answered the witness.

"Well," continued counsel, "the exaggerated things, didn't he?"

"Yes."

"He made a great democrat out of you—whittling on your back porch."

"Yes."

DEFINITE STEPS TO RELIEVE TIEUP OF TROLLEY SYSTEM

Important developments continued today in the big strike of 7,800 Elevated employes, which seriously interfered with business conditions and threw a tremendous burden on the rail-roads. These developments, in the order of their importance, were as follows:

1—A secret conference in the office of Acting Mayor Ford, called for the purpose of discussing a suggestion offered by the Boston American to settle the strike, at which representatives of all concerned were present, was summoned to the office of Governor Coolidge. After a meeting of half an hour's duration it was announced that the strike committee and trustees would meet later in the day at the office of the latter, at which time the first step looking toward the end of the strike would be taken.

2—Charlton Ogburn, examiner for the War Labor Board, expressed his willingness to act as arbitrator in the strike, having received telegraphed authorization from Joint Chairman William Howard Taft.

3—Representative John F. Fitzgerald reported to be attempting to formulate a plan whereby the strike can be submitted to arbitration.

4—Mayor Andrew J. Peters asked to return from his Summer home in Maine, and expected to arrive tonight.

5—At the Department of Labor in Washington it was said that a report from Henry J. Skeffington of the Department of Conciliation, who has been in Boston two days, was expected.

6—Orders introduced into the Legislature calling for an investigation of the strike by a legislative committee, and a request to the War Labor Board to convene in Boston.

7—Contradiction by James H. Vahey of ex-President Taft's statement that the War Board has no authority to render a decision unless the men go back to work. Mr. Vahey declared that a decision was rendered in Kansas City after men had been on strike six weeks.

8—Denunciation of the strikers by Corporation Counsel Alexander Whiteside, who declared them to be "no better than the Germans, for they also have treated their agreement as a scrap of paper."

The conference in Acting Mayor Ford's office was called by him, following a suggestion made earlier in the day by the Boston American. The conference began at 11:45 and was of a private nature, no reporters being invited.

FORD EXPECTS STRIKE TO END TONIGHT

The Elevated strike will be ended late tonight, according to a statement made at 2 p. m. by Acting Mayor Ford. Mr. Ford based his opinion on the fact that the trustees will undoubtedly adopt the suggestion for a three-man board of arbitration. He does not believe, however, that service will be resumed in time to benefit commuters.

MAY OPPOSE PAYNE FOR SHIPPING BOARD

Washington, July 17.—Indication of some opposition to the nomination of John Barton Payne as a member of the Shipping Board, to succeed Edward N. Hurley, chairman, was evident today when the Commerce Committee of the senate failed to take favorable action on the nomination. Payne's nomination was referred to a sub-committee for investigation.

UNPRECEDENTED ELEVATED STRIKE MAKES THOUSANDS WALK

The Associated Operation dismissed at the conference was for the appointment of a board of arbitration consisting of one representative from the Elevated, one from the union and the third to be chosen by these two.

Another suggestion, which was taken under consideration by Acting Mayor Ford, was made by Councilman James A. Watson, Jr., to the effect that the Boston tunnel be opened to foot passengers until the strike is settled.

The Elevated trustees said they would accept an arbitration board consisting of the Hon. Mr. Vahey and a third man to be chosen by these two, the decision of the board to be binding on the public. It is understood the trustees did not favor the appointment of Mr. Ogburn, but preferred a man like Henry B. Endicott or some other equally prominent businessman.

Hundreds of business and manufacturing establishments were seriously crippled by the strike, the city although not affected to any great extent, had made arrangements beforehand to transport their employees from and to their homes in automobile.

TELEPHONE COMPANY READY.

The telephone company experienced a trying time in business men subscribers' ranks to the realization that the service had failed to their threat to strike. A large force of extra operators had been called by the company in anticipation of this contingency, but even with this increased strength in exchanging a were overtaxed.

The carmen, who demand higher wages and a 44-hour day, voted to strike against the advice of Acting Mayor Francis J. W. Ford, the Boston Central Labor Union and officers with the most utmost to keep the men at work. The carmen's action was in defiance of the National War Labor Board order.

The War Labor Board, whose failure to announce a decision within the forty-eight-hour period prescribed in connection with the immediate cause of the strike, today withdrew from the case, as far as making any decision as concerned it, as a result of the action of the carmen's union.

Accepting the strike as unwarranted and a violation of an agreement entered into with the president William Howard Taft and chairman of the board, Frederick P. Fish, that, under the rules of the board, it would make no decision as long as the workers refused to work, in case the men returned to work, Chairman Taft promised a decision within 5 days.

RUSH IN AND OUT.

The inward rush at the South station began with the arrival at 6:32 of a local from Braintree. This train has two passenger cars, which are usually for normal inward travel at this early hour. Today nine cars, every one jammed. Bulk of these passengers were picked up between Neponset and South Boston.

The big rush, so to speak, mounted up at 6:50. The train arriving at 6:39 from Forest Hills, which brought in hundreds of passengers from Jamaica Plain and Roxbury, had them standing on the steps.

There was an increasing outward rush with a shortage of cars to be brought in many complaints. From 6 o'clock until 7:30 only locked windows were open, with long long lines of wrathful persons at each window. There was incessant effort by many in crowd into the lines out of turn, and hundreds heard the usual insults. A favorite way to dodge long waits in the line was to get something and then pretend that one had to buy an extra ticket, and then, when waiting, slip back into much warmer.

PUT ON EXTRA TRAINS.

Both the New Haven and Boston & Albany roads put on extra suburban trains to and out, and added extra cars to their regular trains in desperate effort to take care of the commuting business from the Elevated strike. The railroads had had many days' notice of the strike, and count of persons requiring a suburban steam transportation after the Elevated fare was increased to a dime on July 10 But the increase from this was merely a trickle compared with the tremendous rush of traffic which burst upon railroads today.

Workmen in the big Victory plant in Squantum and the Fore River shipyard were unable to get to work as no service was delayed on account of the strike.

TRUCKS CARRY MANY.

Around the entrance to the South station was a swirl of emergency motor service, reaping a harvest from the strike. Many of the large industrial plants put motor trucks and motor trucks into commission to bear their employes from the railroad station to work. These trucks were being loaded to the limit of the eyes of those privileged to ride in them.

Many Cambridge express trucks, horse-drawn and motorized were pressed into the city service. The favorite way was to entice a light motor truck with two long settees and carry all we could get aboard.

The "Seeing Boston" cars, popularly known as "Rubberneck Wagons" were put on jitney work during the rush hour to gather in extra money before the regular sightseeing day began.

GIRL RIDER ON ENGINE

Railroad trains arriving at the North Station were packed to the doors, and many were behind schedule time, delayed by extraordinary crowds at suburban stations. The conductors experienced difficulty in making their way through the aisles to collect fares. In the North Station groups on arrival fell into step and exchanged experiences.

"I rode on the engine," one girl was heard to say, "and a lot of men on my train climbed up on the roof."

In spite of the mad dash down town and the threatening weather there was an air of merriment on the streets. Every conceivable vehicle was called into requisition.

Jitney buses charging 25 cents a fare operated on some streets, but at no one seemed to know where they were going pedestrians were often discouraged from hailing them. This was a drawback in the case of many other passengercarrying vehicles, which, though frequently half-empty, had no placard to show their destination. Taxicabs and "coupes" did a thriving business and calmly disregarded all traffic rules at the North Station by driving in over the sidewalk and "charging" groups of persons waiting for the street cars.

Girls riding on the seats of trucks alongside the drivers; automobiles filled with miscellaneous passengers, strangers to each other; and "pig-tars" (sailors) in the open air rides to pedestrians, were common sights.

LEGISLATIVE STRIKE PROBE IS ASKED

War Labor Board Scored by Order Introduced by Representative Brennan

An investigation of the strike of the Boston Elevated carmen by a legislative committee and a request of the War Labor Board to convene in Boston immediately for an act to the strike is provided for in an order introduced into the House of Representatives today.

The Legislature is authorized to spend $5,000 in investigating the situation leading to the strike and is given full authority to summon witnesses to give testimony under oath, compel the production of books and papers and send out to enforce it or put an end to the strike. Said orders were introduced by Representative James H. Brennan of Charlestown.

HOUSE FOLLOWS ITS LEAD.

Mr. Brennan made no effort to have the House adopt the investigating order under suspension of the rules, but it duly voted to make the usual reference to all orders to the Committee on Rules. A like disposition was made of the other

The orders are as follows:

Whereas, the passenger transportation system of the metropolitan district and of the city of Boston is practically paralyzed, as a result of the strike of the Boston Elevated Railway Company employees, and

Whereas, said condition of affairs is both abnormal and unreasonable in these days of advanced war readjustment and could have been averted by prompt action of the War Labor Board, one of whose members is an ex-President of the United States who should have exerted his influence to bring about a speedy decision on this case; therefore be it

Ordered, That the Massachusetts Legislature urgently requests the War Labor Board to convene forthwith at Boston, to decide said controversy and thereby prevent great industrial stagnation and possible conflict, and be it further Ordered, That the sergeant-at-arms is hereby directed to send a copy of this order by telegraph to each member of the War Labor Board.

WOULD EXPEND $5,000.

Ordered, A Joint Special Legislative Committee is hereby created to consist of four members of the Senate, to be appointed by the President of the Senate, and seven members of the House, to be appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, said committee shall investigate the strike of the Boston Elevated Railway Company employees, which has resulted in paralyzing the passenger transportation system of Greater Boston. Said committee shall endeavor to secure normal conditions agreeable to contesting parties, if possible to do so. The committee is authorized to spend the sum of five thousand dollars in its investigation, it shall also have power to compel the attendance of witnesses, the production of books, papers and records, and to administer oaths. The committee is further directed to report its recommendations to the present Legislature within one week from the adoption of this order.

Vahey Declares War Labor Board Still Can Settle Strike

In spite the statement of former Judge William H. Taft, one of the joint enactmen of the National War Labor Board, that the strike of Boston carmen was out of the hands of the board, Attorney James H. Vahey, counsel for the strikers, today declared that the board still has authority to settle the controversy.

The last sentence of ex-President Taft's statement was called to the attention of Mr. Vahey and the Quincy House following his conference there with strike leaders. The Boston counsel replied: "If he can't go back to work the joint chairmen would have no authority under rules of our board to render a decision."

After it was read, Mr. Vahey said: "The War Labor Board still has authority in this matter. It settled the case of the Kansas City carmen after the men had been on strike for six weeks. The board still has the power to act in the case."

Mr. Vahey was anxious to know if Mr. Ogburn, examiner for the National War Labor Board, was on his way to Boston. He said that Ogburn's presence here would be a hopeful sign.

"The strike committee will do what it can to settle the strike," said Mr. Vahey. "It is anxious to let the carmen know that the rumors that are going about now returning to work are false and utterly absurd. We don't want the carmen to be misled by such rumors. One of them was to the effect that the men of Division 1, Dorchester, would return to work at noon.

"John H. Reardon, Thomas Shine and I will stay at the hotel to await developments."

William J. Timmins and Charles F. Clark of the strike committee have gone to visit some of the carbarns to find out how things are going. Matthew J. Higgins, John J. Cronin and T. J. Mahoney, other members of the strike committee, have gone to the remaining carbarns for the same purpose."

Cambridge Residents Storm Trains and Pile Into Jitney Busses

At North Cambridge carbarns, where 450 men are employed, 448 walked out, one man, who had resisted all persuasion to join the union, reported for work, but he necessarily idle through the tieup of all Elevated traffic.

The various Cambridge stations were jammed with commuters, and places like Harvard and Central squares became points of departure for jitney buses. The Hood Rubber Company of Watertown assembled sixty machines of various "vintages" and picked up its employes at prearranged points, to take them to work.

The Cambridge station of the Boston & Maine road presented almost a mob scene as residents who are used to the street cars flocked to the trains. Commutation tickets to Boston rides each cost 56 cents, and a long line waited, like the crowd at theatre box offices, while Station Agent Chauncey E. Porter and Assistant Paymaster Melvin Richardson worked at top speed stamping tickets. Extra trains were put on, and extra coaches were added to regular trains.

At the West Cambridge station, which has been closed for some time, although trains still make scheduled stops, there was a large crowd. The gate tender, asked what was the average daily passenger traffic in the morning, replied: "About two people." To-day there were about 200.

At the Bennett street carbarns, just off Harvard square, where 600 are employed, the walkout was complete, even including some starters and inspectors. The few who were not members of the union either joined at the eleventh hour or struck in sympathy.

Central square was the starting point of most of the jitney trade, which was lively inside of two hours from a struggle and interfered badly with the regular traffic. Before noon a few machines succeeded in carry passengers to Park street for fifteen cents. The reasons is no cent that the fare was soon increased to twenty-five cents and some of the long cars charged half a dollar.

By 1 p. m. various large trucks fitted with planks for seats were taking passengers for ten and fifteen cents, upon each accommodating four to five persons.

Lowly "Flivver" Is Best Chance for A Free Ride

For a free ride, try the "flivver." So says from the limousine.

Such was the verdict given by many today after the experience. While hundreds of "flivvers" and other cars were frankly out for jitney receipts, some owners of private cars would generously give a lift to stroke-bewildered suburbanites.

It was noticeable that drivers of "flivvers" would offer free rides, where drivers of limousines would not.

In consequence the "flivvers" were crowded, while many a luxury limousine carried only its owner, or owner and chauffeur.

Additional Patrolmen Assigned to Traffic Duty Because of Strike

The Elevated strike brought changes today in traffic regulations. At all the downtown police stations extra policemen were assigned for traffic work. Automobile traffic increased exceedingly with the distant nuance of the electric lines.

At Park square traffic officers were on duty. Ordinarily there is only one officer assigned to regulate traffic from Dalton avenue to Boylston street and Boylston street to the Public Garden. But this morning there were three officers on duty. Traffic was also regulated at the Arlington street subway at 6:30 a. m. when it was opened to traffic for the day.

Hundreds Ride Free, as Train Conductors Struggle for Fares

Hundreds of people rode free today because of the inability of the conductors on railroad trains to collect fares. It was a physical impossibility for the conductors to get through the crowd of fare in time to get all the tickets.

All the trains were jammed to the utmost. People were standing in the aisles and every inch of room on the platforms was taken.

Three hundred people got aboard the 8:14 train on the Boston & Albany road at Allston station. Ordinarily fifteen or twenty passengers take this train at that point. When the train pulled into South Station the perspiring conductors were still ploughing through the aisles. They missed scores of fares, as the people would not wait when the train stopped.

Two lines of people, with fifty or sixty persons in each line, stood before the ticket windows of Allston station buying strip tickets. "It's the worst day we ever had," said one of the ticket sellers as he wiped his brow.

Trains on the Boston & Albany made good time despite their heavy loads. Most of them were but a few minutes late.

Strikers No Better Than the Germans, Says Alexander Whiteside

The striking carmen, as I view it are no better than the Germans for they also have treated their agreement a scrap of paper.

They did Corporation Counsel Alexander Whiteside today condemn the striking carmen. Mr. Whiteside said that Mayor Peters had been informed of the situation and is hurrying to Boston from Vinal Haven, Me. He should arrive tonight or tomorrow, he stated.

Public opinion, as I have found it, is decidedly against this strike," Mr. Whiteside declared. "Those men are simply defying the law. They are getting a living wage. I don't say it is enough under present day conditions, but I believe that the public generally thinks that they should have abided by their agreement and waited the decision of the War Labor Board.

Public opinion in our mails runs strongly against the strike. In addition I have talked to many leaders in other labor organizations and they are condemning the strike unreservedly."

RAILROADS SAVE THOUSANDS IN SUBURBS

SPECIAL TRAINS AND EXTRA CARS PROVE BOON

The railroads were frequently urged. They did a rousing business. Thousands hiked in the suburbs quite a distance to trains, took chances in crowded but well operated trains connected with specials and hiked from the terminals in Boston to their places of employment and to the shopping district.

Streets from the railroad terminals were crowded. Extra trains were operated on the Boston & Maine, Boston & Albany and the New Haven. Regular and special trains were thronged.

Coaches were added to regular trains and through trains were ordered to stop at way stations. The latter arrangement proved a boon to commuters. Extra tables were quickly exhausted. Thousands walked hastily to suburban destinations and trusted to luck, realizing that it was the only way they could hope to reach Boston.

Private automobiles carried capacity numbers. The fortunate owners of cars gave neighbors lifts. The strike and its duration were the sole topics of conversation. Citizens united the days everywhere. Some of the more light-hearted and optimistic pushed about the difficulties of the situation.

SPECIAL RUNS HOURLY.

On the New Haven Railroad special trains were run from Boston to Forest Hills, making stops at Back Bay, Roxbury, Heath street, Boylston street and Jamaica Plain.

Special trains to Dorchester made stops at Dudley and Bird streets, Mt. Bowdoin and Harvard street.

Specials to Mattapan stopped at Crescent avenue, Savin Hill, Harrison square, Fields Corner, Codman, Ashmont, Cedar Grove, Milton and Central avenue. All these specials left the South Station on the half hour from 9.30 a. m. to 5.30 p. m. and from 6.30 p. m. to 12.30 a. m. The last train for Forest Hills, Dorchester and Mattapan leaves the South Station at midnight.

During the rush hours of the morning and afternoon service was increased by the use of shuttle trains to Forest Hills, Dorchester and Cedar Grove. These were run as often as the service permitted.

The Boston & Albany ran ten extra trains between 5 and 9 o'clock this morning over the circuit and through line to Riverside. The extras were to run tomorrow and while the strike lasts on a reorganized schedule to meet the needs.

The incoming traffic is most difficult to handle, as the normal passenger patronage is crowded into a brief space of time, while in the afternoon travel is more leisurely and distributed.

In order to relieve congestion, at the south terminal and assist in the convenience of persons in the Back Bay a special train for Riverside will be made up and start from Trinity place at 5.20 this evening.

The Boston & Maine put on ten extra suburban trains this morning and will have seventeen extra trains working for the evening rush.

Not a 'Phone Girl Late at Work, Despite Strike, as Company Provided Trucks

Telephone service was not in the least impaired by the Elevated strike today. The two thousand operators in metropolitan Boston got to their work on schedule time. Officials of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company today stated that the attendance at their exchanges was even better than usual.

In preparation for the threatened railroad strike a system of motor transportation was worked out by the company two days ago. One hundred motor trucks, including ten sightseeing buses, were chartered to haul the girls from central points near their homes to the exchange where they work. The system was explained to the operators and each was furnished with a pass signed by the chief operator of the exchange. These were shown to the driver upon boarding the bus. The buses made regular trips from their station to the home of the exchanges. In a few cases it was necessary for a girl and operator from one bus to another to get to her working place.

Notices were sent to each exchange Wednesday evening as to the points where the buses would be stationed today. The operators took the one nearest their homes. Most of them had to walk only a short distance to get a bus. On the front of each bus was a card twenty-six inches long, with the words "N. E. T. & T. Co." eight inches high. Some of the operators found the steam roads more convenient while others, particularly in the suburbs, live near the exchange where they are employed and always walk to and from work.

Not an operator was late to work this morning, it was given out at the company's headquarters today. In fact, most of them started earlier than usual and reached the exchange in time. The same system will be employed in taking the girls home from work.

The success of the telephone company's motor transport is attributed largely to military efficiency under the direction of Lieutenant-Colonel Edwin M. Stannard, Captain John J. Mahan and Sergeant Ernest Chase L. J. Many of these men served with the 101st Signal Battalion and put to work gathered ideas in army motor transport methods.

The system for transporting its employes to and from work will be maintained as long as the strike continues.

Strike Sidelights

A sample of the traffic jam on the suburban trains was found on the one which came in over the Southern Division of the Boston & Maine arriving at North Cambridge at 7.30 a. m. Cars were well filled when the train stopped at North Cambridge. Strike-bound persons who had resorted to the railroad at this point, crammed their way into the trains, filling the last inch of standing room.

The train pulled out four more stops to make before arriving at the North Station. These were West Somerville, Winter Hill, Prospect Hill and East Cambridge. Every car was made, but hundreds of would-be passengers, waiting for a ride, were unable to get on board. There was no room.

West Somerville residents were glad to find resting places on top of the cars. Those stopping at Winter Hill, Somerville Junction, North Somerville, Tufts College, Medford Hillside and West Medford were packed in this fashion. The heads and shoulders of passengers, and the extra load on each train, put down the speed of the locomotives considerably. There were no jitney cars running in front of the trains.

* * *

Steam passengers living beyond the suburban limits escaped the traffic jam. The train leaving Milford for the New York, New Haven & Hartford at 7 o'clock, for example, runs accommodation to Riverside, then express to Huntington avenue and the South Station. It came in today with its normal complement of passengers and only one minute behind its schedule.

* * *

Crowds greater than any that have been seen for years in South Boston flocked through that section early today in their way to work. Men, women and children trudged over the bridges, while others rode in trucks, wagons, in sidecars of motorcycles or on bicycles. Some truckmen reaped a harvest by putting chairs in their trucks and charging a nominal sum to carry passengers into Boston.

* * *

Residents of Brookline, Brighton and Allston thronged the stations on the Circuit Branch and main line of the Boston & Albany every station platform being packed with humanity. Extra trains and additional coaches were put on but some of the less assertive of souls were forced to wait some time before they could board trains. In Jamaica Plain, Forest Hills, Hyde dale and Mount Hope the trains accommodated the workers, but residents of the Germantown section were forced to walk some distance to either the East Dudley or Egleston Square street.

* * *

Cars on the old Bay State, or Eastern Street Railway as it is now known, were run to the old Hyde Park station line today, on one side, and to Grove street, Dedham, on the other. Here it has been customary for Elevated cars to take them over. Many of these cars came through with no passengers, the majority of commuters from these sections patronizing the trains, or riding in automobiles.

Superintendent of Terminals Wright at the South Station stated that traffic was at least three times greater than normal. He said extra extra trains had been put on during the rush hours besides shuttle service between Boston and Forest Hills, Dorchester, Grove Hall Junction and Dalton.

The Boston & Albany put on ten additional extra trains in the morning, and four extras were scheduled for night.

* * *

It was pointed out at the Mayor's office today that the city ferries operating between East Boston and the city proper are giving service for one cent a ride, while the Narrow Gauge ferries offer service at three cents a ride.

* * *

A motor which had escaped from the barnyard and strayed to the West Cambridge railroad station on the Boston & Main road created considerable consternation among the 200 passengers waiting for a morning train. Perching on a fence which bounds the railroad property, he lifted up his voice in a triumphant crow which completely drowned out human conversation.

"Sounds as if he was hooting for the road," observed a commuter. "Pretty good little press agent, at that."

A favorite outdoor sport of Harvard Summer students today was standing in Harvard square and betting on the likelihood of pedestrians being run over in the traffic congestion. The chief object of their speculations was the lone man who goes about with a stick and receptacles to clear the street of rubbish. The square was a turmoil of activity and any pedestrian attempting to cross took his life in his hands. "What'll you bet that jitney gets him?" was the word every minute or two. But at last accounts the street cleaner was still dodging with agility and success.

TUNNEL CLOSED, EAST BOSTON FLOCKS TO FERRIES

MUNICIPAL BOATS TAKE PEOPLE ACROSS FOR A PENNY

Municipal ferry boats conveyed the residents of East Boston to work today. Not in fifteen years have these craft plying between the mainland and the island had such a rush of business.

With the East Boston tunnel monopolized by the Elevated strike, the free ferry was the only means of transportation to business left to thousands in that part of the city. The boats carried passengers across the harbor for one cent each.

CLOSED FOR FIRST TIME.

Today was the first time the East Boston tunnel had been closed since its opening. During the street car strike of 1912 only one of the East Boston employes was in the union and he was the only one to go out on strike. The tunnel was operated through the strike. This employe was Conductor Dan Broughton, one of the oldest in the service of the road.

The South ferry in East Boston starts at the foot of Lewis street and lands its passengers at the foot of Eastern avenue in Boston. The North ferry starts from the corner of Border and Summer street, East Boston and docks at the foot of Battery street, Atlantic avenue. These two ferries are especially popular with the residents of the second and third sections of East Boston. Those of the first section generally used the "narrow gauge" ferry from Marginal street, which takes them to Rowe's Wharf for three cents.

The residents of the fourth section living near the Chelsea line today walked across the Chelsea bridge and took the Boy State electric line at Broadway which brings them direct to Scollay square. The Boy State line has been using the subway but with the closing of the subways by the Elevated strike, has the run its cars on the surface tracks.

ON THE "NARROW GAUGE."

Other residents of the fourth section and part of the third are fortunate in having close at hand the and the island had such a rush of business as on "narrow gauge" in Chelsea creek.

Those who live in the extreme end of the fourth section, from the Orient Heights station and transports its passengers across to Rowe's Wharf of ferryboats operated by it for a total fare of seven cents.

Trains on the "narrow gauge" line were jammed with traffic on the early morning trips, passengers overflowed from the cars onto the car platforms and steps. A delegation of citizens from the lower fourth and part of the third sections will today call on Melvin O. Adams, president of the "narrow gauge" line, and ask that the schedule be arranged so as to have all trains stop at Harbor View and Wood Island stations while the L strike is on. Extra cars to take care of the increased traffic are expected to be put on this line tonight and continued for the strike's duration.

Eager Applicants for Jitney Licenses Visit the City Hall

Applicants for jitney licenses appeared at City Hall today eager to get the "bunny" on all others, despite the fact that the City Council has not even acted on the matter.

The majority of the license seekers owned "flivvers," some one, some two, some a half dozen, but all would-be money makers.

Each individual was anxious to get started, but all were informed that nothing could be done until the Council members accepted the legislative act, which would give them the power to grant such licenses.

It was pointed out that the traffic situation, that setting Maior out of each fare paid, and the new demands of the men if granted will mean

Francis J. W. Ford, who is also president of the City Council, call a special meeting of the City Council today at noon, instead of waiting until next Monday, in order that speedy action in the matter be obtained.

It was pointed out that the meeting could be called immediately, the act accepted, licenses granted, and, if necessary, an additional session held, in order that organization and details be worked out.

Trustee Powers Sees Little Chance for Speedy Arbitration

The possibility for an immediate arbitration between the trustees and the union is remote, according to Trustee Samuel R. Powers. He said: "I do not believe the Board of Trustees could agree to this for reason it would be breaking the arbitration agreeds submitted to the War Labor Board. The proposal that the matter be referred to the War Labor Board was in accordance with the wishes of the union committee and not the trustees. It came as the result of committee meetings held between the union committee and the trustees extending over a considerable period. The matter was submitted to the War Labor Board, and according to Mr. Taft they will render a decision on August 2.

"The demands that the men make now would mean about $6,500,000 increased. The increase in the last nine months and what the men now demand will in all amount to over 100 per cent. in figures and over $10,000,000 in money. The Elevated is losing now 20 per cent. of its business on the two-cent fare and transportation at takes more than five cents to pay the labor to operate the service at cost the new demands made up the men would boost the fare so high that the Elevated would lose all the business," continued Mr. Powers.

Speaking of the public's criticism of the dividends paid to stockholders and the consequent raise in fare to ten cents, Mr. Powers said:

"The dividends paid during the period which ended in June amounted to four-tenths of one cent.

"The criticism of the salaries paid to officials of the road seems to be unwarranted, when compared with the figures. Only .02¼ of a cent per seat has been paid out in salaries, neither a reason, or a strike."

"Labor received last period 4.68 cents

STRIKE SIDELIGHTS

Guards at the South Station have up placards today with the following solemn warning:

"Conductors will see to it that there is no riding on platforms."

A collection plate in and out, was passed to the hand-rails. These signs caused a universal grin.

Five-minute service by railroad trains was established for commuter residents on certain lines among them the Plymouth branch from Mattapan. Extra trains were run also on the Plymouth division from North Weymouth and over the Midland division from Blue Hill avenue. Most trains carried ten coaches, all of which were jammed.

Fifteen hundred L employes were out in Division 1, which includes all of Dorchester. The division is in charge of Superintendent Charles Leonard, around all the corners of the division—Fields' Corner, Neponset, Milton, Dorchester and Grove Hall groups of striking employes gathered, but there was no disorder.

A careless point brought out by the strike is that many residents do not know where the railroad stations are located. Many inquiries were made by residents who never used their local station.

Out at the Reservoir carbarns a group of striking carmen gathered about the fountain, chatted and gambled over chances for winning the Hearty laughter and animated bantering showed that most of the cares of striking or nonexistent from their shoulders. Their striking glove is known to their regular residents as "The Card Index."

Twelve servicewomen, residing in South Boston, were taken to their homes in the city proper today by Representative Manning of the public safety committee.

The servicewomen and the cook had no time to get their lives today, riding to town in the limousine.

"Going up—in Mary's name," "Nothing to it" They were invited, if you please, and by a wealthy resident of a neighboring town. Like other kind hearted owners of cars, driving to the city at an early hour, he saw the two women, victims of the strike, and offered them a ride.

The soft cushions, the plate glass, the wonderful springs, were objects of carefully concealed admiration.

Art like you was used to be mounted. Many the remarks were:

"Yah," responded Olaf, "this base fine."

Who told the brakeman to go through the cars collecting fares? Coming in from Somerville one brakeman went "through" the car at 10 cents a passenger. One chap who was taking his fare said on a train in a long while and to the brakeman "How much?" The brakeman replied, "10 cents will be all right." The dime went into the pocket, as many others did. He passed on to other cards that had been already paraded to a standstill and went on "through" the train.

"That must be pretty nearly a record was "blood pink to mine, I'd rather see him get it than the elevated."

An American reporter rode to Boston on a coal tender, the only place available. And when he landed at the North Station he wondered why everyone was laughing at him. A glance in a mirror soon gave him an answer. He was black to the face, having received most of the cinders and smoke from Somerville to Boston.

STATE TO HONOR 26TH HEROES AT ST. PAUL'S

Elaborate Services Tomorrow Will Mark Entrance of the Y. D. Boys in War

The first anniversary of the entry of the Yankee Division into the second Battle of the Marne, commonly referred to as "Chateau Thierry," will be observed tomorrow morning at St. Paul's Cathedral in memory of those New England heroes who fell in that action.

The service will be under the auspices of the 26th Division Club, former nurses and friends are invited, especially the families of soldiers who lost their lives in the battle. It will be an event of historical importance.

The Rev. Edward T. Sullivan will preach a memorial sermon. Army buglers will sound taps at the close of the service. The Dead March in "Saul" will be played while the congregation stands at attention in respect for the dead. Governor Coolidge, Mayor Peters, President McKnight of the Massachusetts Senate, General Edwards and staff have been invited. General Edwards will be unable to attend. He will be represented by Colonel Albert S. Williams, chief of staff.

Such names as Apremont Woods, Selecourt, Hill 142, Seicheprey, Xivray-Marvisart, St. Mihiel, St. Remy-Dommartin, Genevelles, Haumont-les-Thiaucourt, Bois Jury, Vigneulles, Bois Ville-devant-Chaumont, Herbebois, Bois la Ville, La Chaume and other battle areas of France have been burned indelibly into the history of New England, but no name more prominently or more brightly than Chateau Thierry.

From July 15 until July 25, 1918, the New England troops beat back the German horde in their push toward Paris, relieving and finishing the job of the tired 2nd Division and winning some of the brightest laurels gained in its service overseas.

Co-operating in the attack north of the Marne, the Yankee Division fought valiantly on the line Gerry-Belleau, at Monclercs, Epieds and Trugny and in the Forest of Fere, advancing more than fifteen kilometres in depth in spite of the desperate resistance of the enemy.

General Degoutte, commanding the Sixth French Army with the Yankee Division was brigaded in this important operation, cited the New England troops, saying in part:

"The operations carried out by the Twenty-sixth American Division from July 15 to July 25, dreadstruck the fine soldierly qualities of this unit and the worth of its leader, General Edwards."

The President of the Republic of France visited the Sixth Army to express his satisfaction on behalf of the government over the results obtained as well as the proofs of valor and endurance shown by all the units of the army."

SHOE STRIKERS PRESENT THEIR SIDE OF CASE

Charge Thomas G. Plant Company with Refusing All Arbitration Agencies

Editor American: The strike of [illegible] employees of the Thomas G. Plant Company is said to submit to the Boston American its open letter stating the true conditions of the Thomas G. Plant Company strike.

We feel that the attitude of the company is unfair and unreasonable, and have been unsuccessful in settling the matter ourselves, and feel that by stating the same they desire to present the public through the Boston American their side of the question.

At their last mass meeting held at Hibernian Hall resolutions were adopted and sent to Senator George E. Chamberlain, to which they agreed to have their grievances before the War Board, or Board of Arbitration, or to use any other method that would settle the strike.

REFUSED TO ARBITRATE.

In response to this the Plant company officials have absolutely refused to arbitrate with any of the above named bodies and have told representative of the district, Senator Curran, that they resented his unwarranted interference.

In view of the fact that shoe manufacturers from all parts of the state of Massachusetts have appeared before the Wage and Weeks Committee of the Massachusetts Legislature asking them to use their influence to retain the identity of the State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation because of its fairness in settling labor troubles in the shoe industry, it would seem that the Plant company officials could well afford to submit the grievances between the strikers and themselves to this same board for adjustment and the strikers would abide by whatever they handed down.

ACCUSE STRIKE BREAKERS.

"The strikers on picket duty have on numerous occasions been discriminated against by the throwing of shoe laces, parts of machinery and also the spitting of tobacco juice from the windows by strike breakers. When a complaint was made to the police on duty, no satisfactory results were obtained.

"The strikers, after being out for seven weeks, and knowing that the Boston American has always helped the people in a just cause, feel that you will give the matter as much publicity as you have in other cases of like nature.

"We, on behalf of the 2,700 strikers, thank you in advance for whatever publicity you may give this letter.

"Yours very truly,

THE STRIKE COMMITTEE: John H. Murray, William J. Lee, William J. Weiler, Alexander D. Joyce.

"Hard Stuff" Missing, Owner Accuses Painters

North Adams, July 17.—A fourgallon alcohol of hard liquor, reserved by a local man in his cellar, has disappeared and a law suit is likely as a result.

A number of painters had been at work in the man's residence, but when they discovered the presence beneath the same roof of some of the "real stuff" it is charged, they put aside their tools, drank a quart and a half of the stuff, one was removed, and private settlement to the amount of $250 was made by the painters, it is said, under threatens action.

CIGARETTE SMOKERS of America: Crack this nut in your own teeth

If there were any other tobacco in the world as mild or as good for cigarettes as Turkish tobacco—do you think that S. Anargyros would maintain a small army of trained experts in the Orient, 4000 miles from home—to select, buy, grade and pack Turkish tobacco—then pay ocean freight, plus 35c a pound import duty?

Of course not—nor would our competitors use a single leaf of Turkish tobacco if in any other tobacco grown they could find a substitute for the "dash" of Turkish which they put into their "bundle" cigarettes to make them smokable—and without which they would be lost.

Our competitors know all this. They harp on "part Turkish" and "blend of Turkish" and "paper packages" in place of a box. In fact they make many skillful apologies, which they hope will in part take the place of 100% Pure Turkish Tobacco.

Now here is the nut—and we will crack it for you.

Murads are 100% Pure Turkish Tobacco, the World's most famous Tobacco for cigarettes. They are the proverbial "whole loaf"—not half loaf or part of a loaf.

They are, for protection, packed in cardboard boxes. A hen lays her eggs in a shell for protection. If you prefer them without the shell, you get scant protection and much scrambling.

You ask the question, "Are Murads so much better than the other kind of cigarettes?" The answer is: More than twice as good—and we have here told you why.

Are Murad 100% pure Turkish "whole loaf" cigarettes more expensive? YES. All 100% good things cost more and are worth more than half good or imitation good.

Cigarette smokers of America: People of your class and enlightenment know these things and appreciate them. We are proud to say to you that ordinary cigarettes cost a trifle less than Murads. Think it over. The reasons are before you. Judge for yourself! In the long run the public makes no mistakes.

FREDA LESSER'S DEATH SECRET IS SOLVED

Officials Announce They Have Absolute Evidence of Murder Against Harry New

Los Angeles, Calif., July 17.—Evidence to prove conclusively that the slaying of beautiful Freda Lesser by Harry S. New, Jr., said to be a son of United States Senator New of Indiana, in Topango canyon early on the morning of July 5 was a deliberate act, has been discovered by the District Attorney's detectives.

This evidence will be kept secret until New goes to trial for the murder of his sweetheart, it was officially announced.

Deputy District Attorney Keyes affirmed a report that the prosecution has the "surprise evidence."

Harry S. New, Jr., a "Mother's Darling," as Were Other Noted Slayers, Says Miss Black

By WINIFRED BLACK.
Written for Universal Service.

Los Angeles, July 17. — Why did Harry New murder Freda Lesser?

Does he know now, himself?

Did he ever know?

Why did Herman Knaesche kill his young wife Freda up in Ukiah, California, the other day?

He has confessed the crime and he says he doesn't know why he committed it.

He just had to kill her—that's all. So the poor little, happy, trusting bride "just had to die," moaning his name with her last breath.

It's a strange thing about these emotional murderers. Have you observed it? They are all "mother's darling"—every one of them.

The four greatest cases of emotional murder in the past ten years all had this one thing in common.

There was the Thaw case in New York, the Hyde case in Kansas City, the Orpet case in Chicago and now the New case here in Los Angeles.

Every one of these men accused of murder in every one of these cases was a mother's "darling."

There was Harry Thaw—the puzzle of his teachers, avoided by his playfellows, the mystery of his family—and the pet of his mother.

He murdered the man of genius and married him when the offense against the world of Stanford Whitelaw was two years old.

He knew all about it when he married the girl, but one night he saw the man on a roof garden having a good time and something snapped in his brain—and he shot—and killed.

His mother stood by him—behind him—and she believed in him, comforted him, shielded him, spent her money like water and her strength as one sifts yellow sand between the fingers at the seaside. The money saved him from electrocution and he was shut up in an asylum for the hoosge from which he now and then emerges to visit the cafes and cabarets of New York—the nine hours wonder of the great White Way.

Roscoe Clarke Hyde, too, was the clever, bad tempered—he murdered his wife's relatives and was accused of trying to murder his wife's sister and brother—for money.

He was tried again and again found guilty, sentenced to death, but money came to his rescue.

Roscoe Clarke Hyde, too, was the indulged and petted and spoiled idol of his family.

Will Orpet, handsome, clever, smooth-tongued, the ambitious son of an honest carpenter, made love to a prosperous girl of sixteen, victimized her to suit his whim. She died—by poison.

He was a mother's darling, too.

And now Harry New, confessed murderer of the girl he was supposed to love—another mother's darling.

"Harry leans on mother—mother leans on me," said Harry New's half-sister Edna and Edna spoke the truth without a shadow of a doubt.

What ails the mother's darlings?

DAUGHTER OF THE GAYNORS WEDS AGAIN

San Francisco, July 17.—Edith Augusta Gaynor, daughter of the late Mayor Gaynor of New York, has chosen another husband from the membership of the famous Meadowbrook Club of Long Island.

Her first choice was Harry K. Vingut, broker, Meadowbrook polo player and gentleman jockey.

Her second is James Park, multimillionaire by inheritance from his father, late a lieutenant in the United States field artillery and erstwhile master of the hunt at Meadowbrook.

Last Monday the daughter of the Gaynors was granted a divorce from Vingut at Reno on the grounds of cruelty and desertion.

Tuesday, allowing just enough time for the journey, she procured in San Francisco a license which permits her to marry Park.

And today she checked out from the Palace Hotel here and is presumed to be on her honeymoon somewhere in California.

There has been no return on the marriage license, but it is assumed by her friends that there was a wedding in San Francisco soon after the issuance of the license.

Vingut, who was quite ill at the time his wife journeyed to Reno, said he was not surprised at her action.

Everything in styles from Spanish to Turkish, from Occident to Orient, is seen this year at Newport, where society's favorites are not only entertaining on a lavish scale this Summer, but are feasting the eye of the beholder on all the latest "creations."

Some of the smartest new modes are shown on two of the most prominent women of the social colony at Newport, Mrs. Cornelius Tangeman and Mrs. William Payne Thompson of New York.

Mrs. Tangeman is seen wearing the new "harem veil," the last cry in automobile wear. It is of heavy mesh attached to the hat in the rear and so arranged that it can be dropped to the chin, uncovering the whole face.

Mrs. Thompson is wearing a gown trimmed with the popular fringe, derived from the fashions of the Spanish beauty. Rows of it adorn the corsage and skirt, and, of course, the sleeves, which are hidden underneath the smart box coat.

WANTS PICTURES RETURNED TO HAZZARD

Ayer, July 17.—Threatening a civil suit if the articles taken from the home of Arthur Garfield (Honey) Hazzard are not returned, William H. Lewis, counsel for the latter, has made a demand for them upon George L. Wilson, counsel for Miss Puffer, whose marriage to Hazzard was averted by their arrest in Concord, N. H. last month.

Among the articles are a phonograph, pictures and brie-a-brac alleged to have been taken from the home of Miss Puffer in Sandy Pond all of which are enumerated by Attorney Lewis in a letter to Attorney Wilson. The latter and Police Chief Beatty visited Hazzard's home recently and claimed these goods, which were taken to the police station and stowed away.

"I have no comment to make," said Mr. Wilson when asked if he intended to return the articles.

SUMMERFIELDS

727-737 Washington Street

The question for thoughtful people to consider right now is not what do things cost TO-DAY, but what will they cost in the next few months to come. Every head of a home, every man and woman who has to look a family budget in the eye, should awake to the advantages of buying now for future needs, for Summerfield's is making prices during this sale that defy the market and may not be duplicated in months or perhaps years.

The question naturally arises, if Summerfield's stocks are growing in value by leaps and bounds, why not hold them for the future since goods are so scarce and present retail prices so comparatively low?

The answer is, Summerfield's stocks are so enormous that we could hardly get another dollar's worth into the store and warehouses, due to the placing of orders far ahead at old prices, and new merchandise is arriving daily from all sources, all especially for this planned sale.

Every article in the store bears a special tag showing the grade and the July Sale Price. Credit terms can be arranged to suit your convenience if you so desire.

In view of the tremendous rush that has been encountered during this sale an extra force of salesmen has been engaged so that we can serve you in the customary manner of satisfaction.

NANTASKET LINE BOASTS 100TH BIRTHDAY

Oldest Steamship Company in World Plans Extensive Developments

Fellow Nantasketer, a word with you.

Did you know that the oldest steamship company in the world was celebrating its 100th anniversary this Summer, and right here in Boston too?

The Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company is the original "old man of the sea," so far as steaming navigation is concerned, and this year is its centennial.

It was 100 years ago this month—only a few years after Robert Fulton had demonstrated that boats could travel against the wind—that the first daily steamboat service was established between Boston and Hingham. Out of that daily trip, which was the talk of the community, grew the big concern of today, with eight fast "coast liners," carrying thousands daily.

It was an auspicious beginning, that first trip, with the whole town down Boston harbor and up the Weir River, but from its crude start to today the Nantasket steamboat excursion company of New England, and almost the entire world.

WATCH IT GROW.

The oldest is also the most vigorous of them all, and Frederic L. Lane, the general manager of the company, says that the 100-year-old concern is but an infant and its real development just begun. The slogan of Mr. Lane and his corps of subordinates is not "Do you remember," but "Watch us grow." A large share of the recent growth of the Nantasket company has been due to this same Manager Lane, probably the least photographed notable in Boston.

Mr. Lane, the Neptune of the Massachusetts coast, is a self-effacing, hard working and outwardly prosaic business man. But he is a man with the vision to see the pleasure needs of the vast populations of Greater Boston and not only to meet but to anticipate them.

He is forty-six years old, a man who learned to combine business and early by life with various theatrical concerns. But his best years have been given and here he is given to the steamboat business.

He is a staunch believer in the popularity of excursions, and his faith is being justified this year by the crowds which are using the excursion South Shore to the daily trip along the coast to Plymouth.

EXPANDED UNDER LANE.

The South Shore trip to Plymouth has been restored after two years of suspension, due to war conditions. The Nantasket boats are back on the regular Summer schedule after two years of comparative inaction. The big transportation company is the one to get the credit at its job of getting the sweltering thousands to the pleasure grounds with unbridled energy.

Manager Lane, for years connected with the Nantasket company, was made general manager in 1912, and immediately inaugurated a policy of expansion which was temporarily stifled by the war. He built the Mary Chilton, one of the Nantasket boats, in 1916, and the next year he dug the channel in Weir river, off Nantasket, which did away with the tedious channel.

The digging of the channel has not merely made the Nantasket trip more pleasant, it has helped owners of other river or coast craft.

PUBLIC WELL PROTECTED.

Under Mr. Lane's rule the company has grown gradually until it now employs 300 men. Its boats are equipped with every safety device suggested by the government and with many of their own. It has weathered the storm in which so many excursion companies were engulfed, and it is abundantly growing stronger with the years.

The Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company was incorporated in 1851 with a large number of stockholders, mostly residents of Hingham. The company has always been more or less under the control of Hingham people, a fitting enough situation in view of the fact that the company's first started for the convenience of business men and workmen living there and working in Boston. Mr. Lane is a Hingham man.

The boats of the steaming fleet are the South Shore running daily along the coast for which it is named to Plymouth, and the Nantasket coast line to Betty Alden, the Mayflower, Old Colony, Nantasket, Massasoit, Governor Standish and Mary Chilton. These boats are built to carry 2,000 passengers, but rarely do.

BOAST NO ACCIDENTS.

The boats ply seven days a week days and at twenty-minute intervals on Sundays and holidays. Manager Lane has always cooperated with the advertising campaigns of the Nantasket Beach and with the real estate men.

Being used by over three million people annually. It will increase the strength of weak, nervous, run-down folks in two weeks' time in many instances. Ask your doctor or druggist

NANTASKET LINE HAS 100TH BIRTHDAY

Frederic L. Lane, general manager of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company and the "Neptune of the Coast," says that his company is still only a infant, despite its 100 years, and that its real development has just begun.

These thousands have been carried to and from Nantasket Beach without a single major accident, without a fire or a crash, and without a fatality which could in any way be attributed to the company.

He has never been deaf to the appeal of little children, and has frequently co-operated with the Boston American in providing free trips for the little people of the very poor.

CLEMENT FINDS NEW JOB FOR JUDGE MORSE

Hardwick, Vt., July 17.—Governor Clement has appointed Judge Melville G. Morse legislative librarian to succeed John M. Avery, who is to be State commissioner of taxation. Judge Morse was appointed tax commissioner by Governor Clement when the Legislature was in session, but the Senate would not confirm the appointment. The Governor then appointed him judge of the Municipal Court of Caledonia County. Judge Morse gives up the position to take the new office, which by legislative enactment is a permanent position. Mr. Morse has been State's attorney of Caledonia County, State senator and during the war served with the Y. M. C. A. overseas.

HORSE'S NECK BROKEN; HIT BY LOCOMOTIVE

St. Johnsbury, Vt., July 17.—Robert Learmouth saw his horse running away and exclaimed "I hope he will break his neck." The animal ran along the railroad tracks and was killed by the engine of an approaching express. Examination showed the horse's neck was broken.

CIVIL CONSCRIPTION LIKELY IN GERMANY

London, July 17.—Germany may resort to civil conscription as a result of France's demand for 500 men for construction work in the devasted area, said an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen, quoting the Vossisches Zeitung of Berlin. The proposal for civil conscription has already been made in Germany.

The Socialist newspaper Freiheit of Berlin prints a proclamation that Germany will join the general strike in Europe on July 21.

For Itching Eczema, Old Sores and Piles

"I guarantee my ointment," says Peterson of Buffalo, "to relieve eczema; to stop the itching at once and any reliable druggist will cheerfully refund your money if PETERSON'S OINTMENT doesn't do everything I say it will do."

William A. Carley of Franklin, N. Y., is right in line with the others. He used PETERSON'S OINTMENT on a little sore suffering with eczema. It did the work.

Then there is Alex. Loutrel, a brave fireman of Buffalo, who is glad to write as follows: "I had an old sore on my leg for many years. The best doctors failed. PETERSON'S OINTMENT entirely healed the sore quickly." And from over in Canada comes a letter from A. Blokesby, stating: "The best thing I ever felt for itching piles is PETERSON'S OINTMENT." A big box for 35 cents.—Advertisement.

BOYS' CRAVING FOR APPLE PIE LED TO CRIME

Paige and O'Brien Confess to Robbery and Murder of Their Employer

New York, July 17.—An inordinate craving for apple pie and the desire for rich clothes led Earl Paige and Edward O'Brien, eighteen, into a robbery plot which ended in the killing of Gardiner C. Hull, their employer.

That is what Paige told Assistant District Attorney Joyce in a prison in Philadelphia, Paige, it is said, made a complete confession of his part in the crime, but denied that they had intended to kill Hull.

Paige and O'Brien were indicted yesterday afternoon by the grand jury here for first degree murder. O'Brien is under arrest at Freehold, N. J. Papers for their extradition are being prepared.

"Because of his desire to get money with which to buy pie and go to the movies, Paige often talked with O'Brien about the possibility of stealing the payroll of Hull and Dippich," said Assistant District Attorney Joyce. "Paige told me there never was any trouble in the old gentleman. He said that he himself had suggested hitting the old man with a nail puller, but that O'Brien remonstrated, saying that this would 'cut him up too much,' whereupon Paige told O'Brien 'to go and do it his own way.'

O'Brien confessed that he alone murdered Hull. Insanity may be O'Brien's defense.

O'Brien was asked last night if he expected his mother to visit him.

"I don't know," he answered, "and I don't care."

SOLDIER SLAIN IN BROCKTON; 2 ARRESTS

Police Probing Mysterious Shooting That Followed an Argument

Brockton, July 17.—Detectives are trying to unravel the mystery of the shooting of Frank Gentilo, 24, of No. 19 Brides Court, a recently discharged member of the headquarters company, Ninth Division, Army of Occupation, whose body, riddled by five shots, was found near his home early today.

John Arsente, 20, of No. 109 North Warren avenue, is under arrest charged with the murder of Gentilo, and John Pomicelo is held as an accessory to the fact.

Antonio Bonaparte, of No. 19 Brides court, told the police he heard an argument in the street, then heard five shots in rapid succession, and saw Arzente holding a smoking revolver over the prostrate form of Gentilo. Arzente and Pomicelo then ran away, Bonaparte said.

Sergeant Michael W. Keefe and Patrolman William E. Hill traced the fugitives to a cellar on Myrtle street, where they were captured. Gentilo was discharged from the army after fourteen months service abroad last week and returned to the home of his sister, Mrs. John Bonaparte, Tuesday.

How Old Are You By Your Hair?

You may be thirty in years, but if you are bald-headed, gray, or your hair is dry, brittle, scraggly and ugly-looking, people will surely take you to be many years older.

When your hair becomes faded, dry, streaked and scraggly, when it falls out badly and new hair cannot grow, the roots should be immediately vitalized and properly nourished. To do this quickly, safely and at little expense, there is nothing so effective as Parisian sage (liquid form) which you can get at all good drug and toilet counters.

It's guaranteed to abolish dandruff—stop scalp itch and falling hair and promote a new growth or money refunded. It's a great demand by discriminating women because it makes the hair soft, fluffy and wavy, and increases attractiveness and appear heavier than it really is.

A massage with Parisian sage is a real delight—easy to use, not sticky or greasy, and delicately perfumed—an ideal dressing. Just two simple ingredients and guaranteed not to color the hair or scalp. If you want real hair beauty, Parisian sage will do it! 3ll means use Parisian sage—a little attention to your hair daily—beautiful hair for years to come.—Advertisement

IRISH WOMEN DRIVEN MAD IN PRISON

Others Confirm Walsh-Dunne Report of Cruelties by British Jailers

By WILLIAM J. BUTLER.

Universal Service Staff Correspondent

Paris, July 17. Confirmatory details of recent British outrages in Ireland are contained in the following new report compiled by A. Percy of Buffalo, N. Y., who has succeeded Frank P. Walsh, Edward F. Dunne and Miss Lillian D. Wald as American representatives in Paris, and only are the Walsh-Dunne charges explained, but additional facts and dreadful details are given.

PUT THROUGH THIRD DEGREE.

Stories told by women who underwent "third degree" third treatment at the hands of British police in Irish jailers, form a most important and interesting part of the report. All are told at first hand and relate how responsible officials forced confessions from them by threats, starvation, filthy surroundings, with drenched prisoners, how some were driven mad by the cruelties and how others were threatened suicide and one succeeded. Miss Mellett, the correspondent, tells how she was driven to the verge of insanity by the refusal of the British to give her solitude and pure water. Cases of "third degree" in which he was threatened with shooting if he did not confess are also described.

DENIAL OF REFERENCE.

Mr. MacPherson's denial of the reference in the Walsh-Dunne report to the assault upon Professor MacNeill is answered by Professor MacNeill himself, who tells how he was driven for a considerable distance by a party of disguised.

Specific instances of raiding, looting and prison brutalities are given. The report compares with the assertion that the refusal of Britain to permit an investigation by an impartial commission appointed by the peace conference will convince the world that the people of Ireland do not an equal footing with that adopted toward Armenia by Turkish soldiers.

The report, which is addressed to various American and British editors and journalists, follows in full.

"There has been brought to the attention of the American commission on Irish independence the names and details of a number of specific instances of the unlawful and atrocious conduct by which the English government is trying to maintain its domination of the people in Ireland at the present time.

MacNEILL'S OWN STORY.

"The evasive and inadequate answer to the Walsh-Dunne report made by Ian MacPherson, chief secretary for Ireland, appears to nothing to meet the charges with these specific instances a few of which we ask you to record.

"Professor John MacNeill, one of Ireland's most prominent educators, has publicly stated: 'When I came from my home in Ireland—a journey which I was present near Westport, the American consul, the principal personage of this incident, of which I was an eye-witness. Mr. Sheehy, who was also present, says the statement of the delegation can only be described as a deliberate and wicked falsehood. The value of this refutation will afford a test of the value of other refutations which have appeared in the world.

"I was standing close to Mr. Frank Walsh, listening to the discussion between him and the officer. The officer said in loud voice, 'Because this woman is a rebel and has been constantly came forward with fixed bayonets and I was driven for a considerable distance along the road at the point of the bayonet.

TORE BOY FROM MOTHER.

"The letter of Mrs. Murdoch of Grantown, Tipperary, is equally convincing as follows:

"Sir: Kindly publish the following statement of cold treatment of my little boy by the police of Tipperary. It will be an answer to the denial of Mr. MacPherson.

"On March 4 I said my two little boys, aged nine and four respectively, were in my house when about 11 o'clock a body of armed police broke in the front door and ordered me inside to remain while I was while the district inspector took my child away from me. He was outside and kept him there the whole day until 8 o'clock in the evening.

"Five uniformed men cursed him and threatened him, and told him he would be shot if he did not tell the police where arms were hidden. I heard my little boy crying and asked to see but not to him, but I was not allowed to see. I asked to be permitted to bring him something to eat, and was again refused.

"Meanwhile my husband came home to Shedhouse, and was held up, searched and questioned for hours. We had no dinner, and were without food or fire. My little boy had only partially recovered after being three weeks in bed with influenza, and the treatment brought on nervous shock.

"With regard to Lieut.-Colonel Mc. MacPherson that nothing to Ireland is stored or confiscated, save what are necessarily of little intrinsic value,' Charles Strong, an Irish publisher, writes that of his extensive printing plant, worth several thousands of dollars, nothing remained that was not smashed with English sledgehammers or carried off. All this was done without cause, reason or warning, and all protests have availed him nothing.

"Mrs. Bridie Morrow, 15 Doller street, Dublin, testifies:

"My husband was arrested on September 5 and kept fourteen days in a police station in Brunswick street and no charge or reason could be ascertained. He was kept in vile condition without food, mattress or bedclothes until I was permitted to supply them.

"He was released only to be again arrested charged with committing no act criminatory to an act, whatever that may mean, in any case it was sufficient for the police which threatened him to twelve months at hard labor. So far as the British government is concerned, myself and my children have been left to starve since last September and, furthermore, with the unhappy death of the youngest child and the illness of the two others and myself I have suffered something akin to what I daresay a great many other wives are suffering in Ireland."

BRUTALITIES IN JAILS.

"The correspondent of the Freeman's Journal writes:

"I know several prisoners who were confined for months, having never been informed of the charges against them. One of them, a woman, was detained in the police barracks for weeks in a mere without a bed to sleep on.

"Dooley of Berry, Cork, was sentenced to two years at hard labor for stating that the day dream of those in the jail in Manchester for the Irish Republic was true and that no man could serve two countries. He served two months as an ordinary criminal prisoner. He was in the same clothes as some of the other prisoners who were under treatment for vile diseases.

"Patrick Joseph Scoggish Pluing, head of No. 1 Westmoreland street, Dublin paints a picture which pulls no punches with regard to the treatment of his daughter, who died in an unheated cell, kept in a state of collapse.

"Nelli Blain writes of her arrest and imprisonment in Ireland without warrant or charge, of her transfer to England without warning and of her being jailed with disreputable women, one of whom openly admitted that she was diseased, and of her release.

"Most of the respectable women with no more of a hair-string, by-ticket nature, one attempted suicide one day while we were there. After my departure another of these women was transferred to another prison, where she succeeded in taking her own life.'

"According to the records of the district and county councils which are practically the only public bodies allowed to meet in Ireland, a letter of G. H. Ellcesworthy Johnston, chief commissioner of Dublin Castle to the Lord Mayor of Dublin, says:

"'I am instructed to inform you that the government will not, in the future, permit a meeting to the Mansion House of the Irish Executive (Irish Parliament) or of any councils or commissions connected with it.'

Mr. Frank Gallagher was engaged in taking depositions of persons suffering from atrocities referred to in the Walsh-Dunne report, when, without process of law, he was arrested by four officers on a street of Dublin, thrust into a cab and driven to prison where he is now locked up.

ORDER FOR BLYTHE'S ARREST.

"The government order for the arrest of Mr. Ernest Blythe, elected representative of North Monaghan, a Protestant Ulster man, is as follows:

"'Have Blythe arrested at once and conveyed to Cork. This is an important man.'

"The immediate importance of Mr. Blythe is that he is the chief witness of atrocities inflicted on prisoners in the Belfast jail.

"The British government is therefore seeking to arrest him to silence his testimony.

"The Mount Mellick board of guardians protest against the arrest of their physician, Dr. Thomas F. Higgins by the Army of Occupation without charge or warrant, and thus depriving the people of that district of medical assistance.

"The railway County council makes public a statement to the effect that Messrs. Hoey, Slaughter, Doherty and Jordan were deprived of their clothes and bed boards and suspended and placed in dark cells by prison officers. Hoey has since been transferred to the Derry jail.

"Also that Mr. Sheehy of Killymagh is in a state of collapse.

"In the face of the appointment of an investigation of these charges by an impartial commission without advancing any proof in opposition to the truth, either upon the assertion of Chief Secretary MacPherson, cannot fail to convince any impartial observer that the government now controlled by British capitalists in Ireland is on an equal footing with that administered in Armenia by the Turkish soldiery.

"Very truly yours,

"JOHN A. MURPHY.
"American Commissioner on Irish Independence."

BIG FINE ON GERMANS FOR ATTACK ON POILUS

Paris, July 17 (Via French Wireless).—An indemnity of 100,000 francs and a fine of 1,000,000 francs is to be levied on the German government for the attack on two French soldiers in Berlin in which one of the soldiers was killed. According to an eye witness the attack was unprovoked.

GIRL BATHERS AT NANTASKET DEFY POLICE; WEAR SOX

Miss Lillian Mee of Brighton, one of the fair exemplars of the half-hose bathing fashion at Nantasket Beach

Miss Marcelline Connolly of Boston, another girl who proposes to wear half-hose with her bathing costume at Nantasket Beach if she wants to.

Half-a-hose, half-a-hose, half-a-hose down-under!
Ho! the Nantasket Beach girls by the hundred.
Is there a man afraid,
Even a sock-a-fraid?
Anyone seeing us certainly blundered.

(Bare Surf Songs.)

Stockings are at the half-way mark in the feminine race for bathing comfort at Nantasket Beach.

For some of the girls, the stocking is more than half-way. It is at the finish.

This despite the stand taken by the police—especially the Metropolitan Park Police—that two things a girl bather should have are two stockings, one of each leg, and not half-hose at that.

But the girls who are such a handsome and decorative element of Nantasket Beach life insist that full-length stockings are a nuisance, that half-hose are much prettier and much more suitable, and that the time is coming when the stocking-less girl bather will go the way of the divided skirt, bicycle and Japan Harlequin.

The half-stocking brigade is increasing daily in numbers. It covers part of Greater Boston.

For instance—fair exemplars of the half-hose bathing fashion, who were seen on Nantasket Beach on the same day, included Miss Marcelline Connolly of Boston and Miss Lilian Mee of Brighton.

But these were no exceptions. There were scores of other girls wearing only half-hose with their bathing suits, despite the stocking question without compromise. They wear no hose at all.

The bathing opinion comprises these arguments for half-hose and no hose:

1. Make swimming easier, therefore safer.
2. More comfortable.
3. Less to protect or full-length hose and more in line with gay bathing suits.
4. They are found to come anyway.
5. Women and girls have a right to wear their own garments.

Just how the matter may be settled, if at all, anyway, is not known.

President Wilson, just fourteen miles by water from Nantasket Beach, likes mackerel only as food so far as those stocking contests go. But there is plenty more points on short hose.

BRIGHTON JUDGE SEEKS RELIEF OF HICKSON

Congregational Pastor Takes Many Suppliants to St. Paul's to Consult Healer

Rev. Mr. Knight said that he had been on practically all night, traveling as far as Bradford, N. H., to bring patients to Boston from Brighton district.

The board received the testimony in prayer.

The unusual sight at the mission today was that of a woman asserting in the affirmations of Mr. Hickson. She was Mrs. Hurd, who has been connected with the mission ever since its beginning. Prior to the laying on of hands Mrs. Hurd told how she had been before the patient at the altar and how the hands were in prayer.

As each of the Elevated strike committees to the Cathedral doors the women who had walked from Cambridge was wearing bananas, owing to the limp of street cars, she was unable to bring her ailing child. She asked for prayers for her child, and went away hopeful that the absent treatment would aid.

A wealthy woman who was present in the church came forward and offered the use of her automobile to transport those who came from a distance.

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and emulsified cocoanut oil in which neither anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather. Rinse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.—Advertisement.

DICKEY RELATES SERVICES TO MRS. EDDY

Founder's Gift of Journal to Mother Church Introduced in the Hearing

As reading to show that Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy intended that the Christian Science Publishing Society should be under the control of and not independent of the Board of Directors of the Mother Church, counsel for the directors at the hearing before Judge Dodge today offered in evidence and read into the record a contract executed by Mrs. Eddy on January 18, 1900, by which she made a gift to the Mother Church of the Christian Science Journal and other publications.

It was provided in the document that the real estate and the publishing business conducted by the publishing society should be deeded to the Mother Church, and that the profits should be conducted to three trustees named by Mrs. Eddy, the profits arising from the business to be paid to the treasurer of the church.

It was also provided in the deed, in the event of error that the Christian Science Journal should not go to her heirs, but to the board of trustees for the benefit of the Mother Church. Mrs. Eddy then declared that she had the right, which she did not exercise, to alter, amend or change the deed, but that it was to be kept secret in the church and for the benefit of Mrs. Eddy's church.

TAKES STAND.

Adam H. Dickey, who in 1900 became a director, at the request of Mrs. Eddy, told of the relations of the Mother Church's officials as the churches are worked out in practice. Mr. Dickey said that he accepted the position of secretary of the board in 1904, and at her request became a member of her household at Chestnut Hill, Newton. His duties required him to handle many letters and other communications sent to her and he also had charge of many details of the household.

Mrs. Eddy, Mr. Dickey said, was very careful that all the by-laws and regulations of the manual were pointed to by the directors, and in her daily work she kept a copy of the manual upon her desk.

She enjoined upon the directors of her household that they should strictly follow the by-laws and the manual, and the meetings she said that Mrs. Eddy was the presiding person so he had ever met.

Mr. Dickey identified the handwriting of Mrs. Eddy appearing in letters and resolutions which she made comment documentary evidence previously in dispute.

RELATIONS VERY PLEASANT.

In explanation of many now beloved students to whom Mrs. Eddy addressed many communications Mr. Dickey said that Judge and Mrs. Hanna were the persons most by Mrs. Eddy.

The relations which existed between the directors and Mrs. Eddy up to the time she passed on in the Fall of 1910 were very pleasant, he said, and on December 1910, the directors as an ecclesiastical body passed a vote declaring that they should continue to interpret the will of Mrs. Eddy in accordance with the manual and that the board would be the same as when Mrs. Eddy was living.

Mr. Dickey said that no question ever rose as to the right of the directors to name editors of Christian Science publications until after what occurred when Miss Adams at Kidder resigned as an editor and then as a member of the board of directors. In that connection documentary evidence was put in to show that the trustees of the publishing society sought approval by the directors of their action in removing Kidder.

MOTORMAN FAINTS, PASSENGERS FRIGHTENED

Lexington, July 13—Passengers on a one-man car of the Middlesex & Boston Street Railway operating between Lexington and Waltham were given a fright when the motorman of the car, Walter M. ARMED GUARDS ON VESSELS IN HARBOR

Marine Engineers Join in Decision Not to Take Out Craft With Non-Union Crews

Reports that seamen and all other marine workers whose strike has tied up coastwise shipping were at last to arbitration were emphatically denied today at the headquarters of the Marine Firemen's Union. It was declared the men would stand pat on all demands, and fight to a finish.

The marine firemen refused altogether to take the stand attributed to the Eastern and Gulf Sailors' Association. The officers of this latter union were counted as ready to sacrifice the closed shop principle and were demanded in behalf of recognition of the union and a change in the system of shifts.

The announcement that the strikers were not ready for arbitration, the placing of armed guards aboard the deserted vessels in Boston Harbor and the formation of the American Steamship Association in New York today divided the interest of those ashore in the strike.

The strikers continued to round up their men. The Engineers' Benefit Association joined the masters, mates and pilots in their decision not to take out craft with non-union crews. This precludes the possibility of operating these vessels with shipping board recruits.

It is expected that at this meeting New York some policy will be formulated regarding the strike demands. The English ships requested by officers of the Coastwise Transportation Company, C. H. Sprague & Son, the New England Coal & Coke Company, the Sawyer Steamship Company and Crosby & Thurlow.

The Ross Turbout Company tug fleet resumed operations today. The officials have signed an agreement with the union conceding everything. Otherwise the situation was unchanged. No vessels are operating in soft save those of companies in accord with the union.

A delegation of marine firemen waited upon the officials of the Eastern Steamship Lines, Inc., to protest the alleged action of the company's boats in bringing into Boston during the strike of the firemen. It was maintained by the firemen that fish are being brought from Yarmouth, Me.

A drive was begun today against tug boat companies listed as "unfair" to the unions, other tug boat companies which have signed the union agreement will be restrained from handling ships having contracts with the "unfair" concerns.

STATE TREASURER AIDS BONUS WORK AT K. C. HUT

After completing his day's work at the State House, State Treasurer Barrell, while passing the Knights of Columbus hut on the Common, noticed a large number of applicants for bonus blanks. DUBLIN NOT TO OBSERVE PEACE DAY SATURDAY

Dublin, July 12—Except for troops Peace Day will not be celebrated here on Saturday, July 19, as elaborate plans made for its observance in other parts of Great Britain. It has even been decided by Sinn Fein leaders that it be observed as a day of mourning and that black flags be hung out.

Suffrage Delay in R. I. Charged Up to Politicians

Providence, July 12—Rhode Island political leaders are preventing the ratification of the woman suffrage amendment by the General Assembly, in the opinion of Governor Beeckman, in calling special sessions today.

The statement was announced by Mrs. Anne Scott Hoyt, of Washington, national president of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, in which she declared that "all democratic and right thinking people" in favor of suffrage "will hold the political leaders of Rhode Island responsible for the failure to ratify."

Mrs. Hoyt said she would make no statement as to what ground the opponents of the extra session are taking against the amendment.

Republican chiefs in Rhode Island refused to make any statement today. Governor Beeckman will be home tomorrow from Washington, it is expected that more than 2,000 will attend, and the company has declared a holiday on that date.

Baseball and other features will be played between the office and the shipping girls. The batteries include: Office, Margaret Clinton, pitcher; Jennie Tuttlebaum, catcher; laboratory, Frances Coyle, pitcher; Edith Bentley, catcher.

There will be also a game for men between United Drug Company employes and the Jonteel A. A. Music, general and solo dancing, games and sports, and a greased-pig contest will be other features of the program.

The day's events will begin at 10:15, when the members will assemble on the grounds to be photographed. Sports, beginning at 11 a. m., will include sack, shoe and potato races for girls, three-legged races for both girls and men, a fat men's race, running high and broad jumps and a running hop, step and jump contest.

THIN PEOPLE NEED BITRO-PHOSPHATE

Increases Weight, Strength and Nerve Force in Two Weeks' Time in Many Instances

Take plain bitro-phosphate is the advice of those physicians to thin, delicate, nervous people who lack physical energy and nerve force, and there seems to be ample proof of the merit of this preparation to warrant the recommendation. Moreover, if we judge from the countless preparations and nostrums which are continually being advertised for the benefit of "thin people" few, if any, possess the merit of creating arms, neck and bust development, fills hollows and angles in the soft curved lines of health and beauty as does bitro-phosphate, as is evidenced by thousands of men and women who have gained real attractive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are often due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in our ordinary foods. Everyone knows there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is now usually dispensed by most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body with the necessary phosphoric food elements, bitro-phosphate should produce a welcome

Georgia Hamilton, the wonderful "movie" girl, who was once thin and frail, says: "Bitro-Phosphate brought about the marvelous transformation. I gained 15 pounds and never before felt so well."

transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

Clinical tests made in St. Catherine's Hospital, N. Y. C., showed that two patients gained in weight 12 and 25 pounds, respectively, through the administration of organic phosphate, both patients claim they have not felt so strong and well for the past twelve years.

Increase in weight, carrying with it a general improvement in the health, Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which usually always accompany excessive thinness, should soon disappear, dull eyes ought to brighten and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

Physicians and hospitals everywhere are recognizing its merits by its use in ever-increasing quantities, and Dr. Kolle, late editor of New York Physicians' "Who's Who," says: "Organic phosphate should be prescribed by every doctor and used in every household to increase strength and nerve force and to enrich the blood."

Joseph D. Harrigan, Former Visiting Specialist to North Dakota Hospitals, says: "For those who are weak, thin, nervous, or run down, take a natural, unobligated assistance of organic phosphate and you will soon become a convincing sample in the increase of nerve energy, strength of body and mind and power everywhere."

Bitro-Phosphate is made entirely of the organic phosphate compound referred to in the National Standard Dispensatory as being an excellent tonic and nerve food, a preparation which has recently acquired considerable prestige in the treatment of neurasthenia. The standard of excellence, purity and strength of this substance is beyond question, for every Bitro-Phosphate tablet is manufactured in strict accordance with the U. S. Government's rigid requirements. Bitro-Phosphate is therefore not to be confused with any of the secret nerve foods and tonics so widely advertised "cure-alls."

CAUTION: While Bitro-Phosphate is unsurpassed for the relief of nervousness, general debility, etc., those taking it who do not desire to put on flesh should use every care in avoiding fat-producing foods.

Danger Lurks In Summer Foods For Babies

EVERY mother knows the evil effects of summer heat on cow's milk. This danger is equally great to all foods unless carefully kept in a cool place away from insects.

Bad food loses its nourishing value. It causes constipation and diarrhea. These are at best always prevalent in the summer time. They depress the mind and weaken the body, and may cause more serious illness.

The first precaution is to see that the stools are regular and normal. In the case of babies and children, if less than twice a day you may suspect constipation, if more than three times a day, diarrhea. A remedy is then needed that will regulate and tone the bowels and you will find none safer and better than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin that mothers of us have constantly have in the house for just such purposes.

A bottle of Syrup Pepsin can be bought at any drug store for 50c and $1, the latter the family size. A free trial bottle can be had by sending your address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 460 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

MAYS' SILENCE ADDS NEW MYSTERY TO SOX SLUMP

What's the matter with the Sox?
Lifts up above the din.
It's very easy to explain—
They simply do not win.
—Songs of the Bleachers.

By NICK FLATLEY.

Silence has closed down on the Carl Mays and the Red Sox troubles—from the two contending sources. But the well known baseball world is agog, as they say, to have the whole story of the team's troubles break forth. Chances are it never will, for it's neither policy nor good sense.

However, the fans will surmise, and the surmising ofttimes does a lot more damage than the truth. More wild yarns of dissension and strife have been scattered about since the team started slipping, than ever was sprung while German propaganda was being sown around the world.

The facts of the matter, as we see them, are these: The Sox players, disheartened by trades of several stars, and put in quite a nervous state by reports of the deals to come, lost spirit and pep. Again, the dismissal of Heinie Wagner raised general trouble.

WAGNER NEEDED BY TEAM.

Heinie was Carrigan's right hand man, when Lawiston Hill was steering the team to successive championships. He was an idol with all the Red Sox regulars. They knew he knew baseball and was a fighter. From his fund of experience he advised well. Removing him had the same effect on the Sox that taking out the carburetor would have on an auto engine.

Furthermore, Barrow stepped in to manage without any big league directing experience. Unconsciously, perhaps, some of the veterans must have resented this. It was simply a matter of human nature. There hasn't been any fighting, but there has been more or less unrest and discontent.

Right now there is a general desire on the part of the players for the return of Wagner. The team even yet has the material that could place it up in the fight. Man for man, there's not a much better club in the game. But the driving spark that a winning team must have is not there.

OPPOSITION NOT TOUGH.

It may be that Barrow was not designed by nature for a manager. To be sure he won a pennant last year but they he had a team all ready made to do it with. And he didn't have the toughest kind of opposition. This year the campaign has been a grinding fight all the way and the Sox have simply been out of it.

The Sox may go through the rest of the season without changing direction, but it would not surprise the wise to find it Wagner. Ivy rushed in to put the team back where it should be.

Mays may stand out as per his ultimatum, or may not. If he will not play with the Sox, it's a cinch he will be traded very promptly. He's far too good a pitcher to remain on the scrap heap, no matter how revolutionary he becomes.

His period of departure and his statement regarding it were in poor form to say the least. He may have wished to be traded, but he could have gone about the thing in other and much more creditable ways. But he followed his own wishes, being that sort of a person.

PIRATES HERE TODAY.

He sure has put the finishing touches on what was a very disagreeable situation anyhow, but the baseball public is very quick to forget things like that. Dutch Leonard and Joe Jackson, among others, hold themselves open to great criticism and threatened ostracism, but both, as you have noticed, are still working for very high salaries.

Red Sox Scored Nine Runs in Nine Games Behind Mays

Carl Mays, who jumped the Red Sox because his pitching wasn't getting him anything, said a mouthful when he declared that the team wasn't hitting a lick back of him In no fewer than five of the complete games the submariner tossed, were the Red Sox shut out. Carl worked through nine nine-inning reverses and was attached to two other defeats as well. Following are the scores in the nine losing contests:

New York 7, Red Sox 3.
St. Louis 4, Red Sox 3.
Chicago 1, Red Sox 0.
Cleveland 3, Red Sox 2.
Chicago 2, Red Sox 0.
Cleveland 1, Red Sox 0.
New York 6, Red Sox 1.
Washington 4, Red Sox 0.
St. Louis 3, Red Sox 0.

The Red Sox, as is apparent, scored just nine runs in the nine games, which might tend to discourage any pitcher, though Walter Johnson has been living that kind of a life for years.

BRAVES' GAME WITH PIRATES CALLED OFF

Wet grounds and threatening weather were given out as the reasons for postponing the opening game between the Braves and the Pirates, scheduled for this afternoon at Braves Field.

The Corsairs have slipped down out of the real race for the league hunting, and should prove much easier for the Braves than they have previously.

The latter, despite too many defeats, has improved wonderfully, and it will not surprise anybody to see a Brave sport any old time. As Fred Mitchell puts it, "Give the Braves another real outfielder, and one more dependable pitcher, and they'll have as good a team as there is."

How to Play Baseball

THIS is the forty-sixth of a series of articles by Hugh S. Fullerton, celebrated baseball expert, on "How to Play Baseball." In the lesson Mr. Fullerton continues to tell how to become a pitcher. These articles will be a feature of the American's sport pages each day. Don't miss them.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON

The balk motion is one of the chief assets of any successful pitcher The primary object of such a motion, of course, is not to catch runners off the bases, but to prevent them from getting a running start, in stealing or hitting and running.

To hold runners close to the sacks in essential and it is achieved in simple fashion Every pitcher has some distinguishing motion, some peculiar twist of the shoulder or movement of the back muscles which betrays the fact that he is about to start to deliver the ball to the batter

Coachers and base runners have keen powers of observation and are watching for this motion The simplest way of achieving the result asked is to study your own peculiarities of motion and then imitate them in throwing to first base The most successful "balkers" really never balk at all They simply imitate the motion, these quick preliminary pitching movements and first base and throw the ball. They have deceived the runner who was striving to outguess them and gain a flying start.

The pitcher, however, should not throw frequently to first base to catch runners. When he does throw he should make the throw as fast as one, and as near the first baseman's right knee as possible. He should rarely always step toward the batter to give him the signal when he make the "real" throw to catch the runner. When it is apparent that a steal or a hit-and-run is to be attempted it is well to make several throws to first base, not with the intention of catching the runner, but to jockey with him and tempt him into over eagerness. Remember he is watching every move of the pitcher

He is trying to guess from the way the pitcher gets his feet from the sudden tension of his body from the action of the muscles back of his pitching shoulder, when he is going to pitch to the plate Turn the study pointing his own game Try to get him nonchalanced toward second and then make the real throw

Another method of catching runners consists of the quick return of the ball to the first baseman That is, the pitcher misses a throw, the runner slides back, the first baseman shoots the ball back to the pitcher and, as the runner starts off the base the pitcher makes a quick, flash return of the ball to the baseman and not infrequently will catch a runner standing still not expecting too play

The real effective way, though is to "creep" toward first base while seeming to throw to the batter The body can be swung and the head turned as the motion starts and if the pitcher is quick, his throw the preliminary moves used in direct pitching he can deceive any runner Long practice is necessary to make the motion perfect because umpires watch closely and a balk is usually disastrous

Left handers who can stand almost facing first base are of course the best in holding up runners They can turn the body toward first and spear the ball across just as they step toward first, as required by the rules, and by practice can become so skilful that the most alert umpire cannot call a balk on them.

With runners on the other bases, or the bases filled, the pitcher should rely upon his catcher for signals for throws. He should be especially careful of the runner on second and practice making a quick, whirling throw to the base He should practice turning and throwing to second without looking

Indeed it is. It is very valuable and I prize it highly. I am glad Smith is an honest fellow. I wonder how he drew it was my pendant for he drew two or three inches [from] [my] [chest] [and] [then] [gave] [it] [to] [me]. [I] [am] [glad] [to] [see] [you] [then], [Sergeant]. [What] [have] [you] [been] [doing] [with] [yourself]?"

"[Nothing] [worth] [mentioning]," [was] [the] [answer]. "[I] [thought] [it] [best] [to] [remain] [in] [the] [house] [sometime]." [Just] [then] [Mrs.] [Buck] [entered]. [Perhaps] [she] [didn't] [hear] [Norah] [reply] [to] [me]."

The [sergeant] was [not] [asking] [in] [a] [confidential] [tone], [but] [he] [was] [certain] [that] [the] [parlor] [maid] [heard] [every] [word] [that] [he] [said]. [I] [was] [glad] [to] [see] [you] [looking] [so] [well], [Mrs.] [Buck]," [he] [continued] [heartily]. "[I] [hope] [you] [have] [been] [enjoying] [yourself] [during] [your] [visit] [to] [the] [country]."

"[I] [have] [been] [very] [happy] [indeed]," [she] [replied]. "[I] [am] [sorry] [to] [leave] [Mrs.] [Lorraine] [so] [soon]. [I] [have] [been] [very] [much] [interested] [in] [her] [work] [for] [the] [poor] [children]. [I] [am] [sure] [that] [I] [could] [help] [her] [a] [great] [deal] [if] [I] [were] [to] [remain] [here] [for] [a] [few] [days] [longer]."

"[I] [am] [sorry] [that] [you] [cannot] [do] [so]," [the] [sergeant] [said] [politely]. "[I] [am] [sure] [that] [Mrs.] [Lorraine] [would] [be] [glad] [to] [have] [you] [stay]. [But] [I] [suppose] [that] [you] [must] [return] [to] [your] [husband]."

"[Yes]," [she] [answered] [absently]. "[I] [must] [return] [to] [my] [husband]."

"[I] [am] [sure] [that] [he] [will] [be] [glad] [to] [see] [you]," [the] [sergeant] [said] [heartily]. "[I] [am] [sure] [that] [he] [has] [missed] [you] [very] [much]."

"[Yes], [I] [am] [sure] [that] [he] [has]," [she] [said] [in] [a] [low] [voice].

[Mrs.] [Buck] [left] [the] [room] [and] [went] [upstairs] [to] [her] [own] [room] [and] [examined] [the] [pendant]. [Sure] [enough], [Norah] [found] [in] [the] [bottom] [of] [the] [case] [the] [warrant]. [Norah] [exclaimed], "[A] [lot] [of] [good] [you] [didn't] [drop] [it] [on] [the] [street]."

Indeed it is. It is very valuable and I prize it highly. I am glad Smith is an honest fellow. I wonder how he drew it was my pendant for he drew two or three inches from my chest and then gave it to me. I am glad to see you then, Sergeant. What have you been doing with yourself?"

"Nothing worth mentioning," was the answer. "I thought it best to remain in the house sometime." Just then Mrs. Buck entered. Perhaps she didn't hear Norah reply to me."

The sergeant was not asking in a confidential tone, but he was certain that the parlor maid heard every word that he said. "I thought it best to remain in the house sometime," was the reply. "

PROFIT TAKING CUTS DOWN GAINS

Oils and Carriers Are Strong, While List Rules Irregular

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were irregular in New York at noon today. Trading was heavy and a number of leading issues had declined from yesterday's closing prices, but oils and stocks showing gains included Ajax Rubber, Fan American, Famous Players, Baldwin Locomotive, Baltimore & Ohio and Mexican Petroleum.

Among weak issues were American International, Marine issues, Hide & Leather, Industrial Alcohol, Studebaker, Virginia Carolina Chemical, Corn Products, Canadian Pacific, General Motors, Midvale, Pressed Steel Car and Industrial Alcohol. Declines were off from one to three points.

Prices were higher at the opening with oils and rails featuring the advance. Stocks began higher, but reacted. Mid-Continent, Maxwell, St. Paul were strong carriers, each opening at its year's highest. Baltimore & Ohio made a substantial gain in early trading.

The market became irregular during the first hour, recessions being due to realization selling. The professional trading seemed to be looking for a sharp reaction and speculators in general are disposed to take profits quickly. Rails were the most active. First hour transactions totalled around 450,000 shares.

After opening at $125, demand sterling broke to $4.26¾, a decline of more than five cents from Wednesday's last quotation.

The New York Stock Exchange will be closed on Saturday next to give brokerage houses and others a chance to catch up with the work which has accumulated through market activity.

BOSTON OPENS STRONG, WITH RAILS LEADING

At the opening in Boston, New Haven and Boston & Maine were conspicuous for gains. Both remained strong although by noon they were under their highest for the morning. Gains for the forenoon in New Haven was up 1¾, and Boston & Maine 1½. Copper metals were also strong. Lake copper metal is sold at 23 cents a pound for September delivery. Highs for the year were reached by Calumet & Hecla, Copper Range, Old Dominion, Arizona Commercial, Utah Metals, New Haven and Boston & Maine.

After advancing more than a point Mexican Petroleum readjusted part of its gain and was showing a loss at the end of the morning. Fairbanks also showed a loss of 2½ points. The recessional trend to the market in the second hour was evident.

Among weak issues were Ahmeek, Swift International, Amoskeag and Eastern Steamship.

Aetna Explosives Plan

J. & W. Seligman & Co., readjustment managers, have declared approximately 99 per cent. of the $1,574,600 of 6 per cent. bonds and 85 per cent. of the $4,163,425 preferred stock of the Aetna Explosives Co., have assented to the readjustment plan as amended. Directors and stockholders have approved and Judge Mayer has authorized immediate payment of funds necessary to make it effective. Holders of certificates of deposit for bonds electing to take cash will receive $850 and accrued interest not later than July 30, or after that date, July 17, next, upon surrender of their certificates of deposit for bonds who elect to take the new series A bonds must signify their intention in writing to their depositary on or before July 30 next.

READJUSTMENT OF AETNA EXPLOSIVES CO., Inc.

To Holders of 6% Gold Bonds, Preferred Stock, and the various Certificates of Deposit therefor of Aetna Explosives Co., Inc.:

Securities have been subjected to the Plan and Agreement as amended June 30, 1919, with approval of Hon. Julius M. Mayer, Judge of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, in the following amounts and percentages of outstanding securities, respectively:

$1,574,600 of 6% Gold Bonds, approximately 99%
$4,163,425 of Preferred Stock, approximately 85%

Said figures, however, including $501,800 par value of Preferred Stock deposited with the Stockholders' Protective Committee under the Agreement of September 29, 1917, the holders of which have until July 26, 1919, to dissent from the Plan, but none having dissented to date, and also including bonds purchased by the Receivers.

Both the Directors and the Stockholders of the Company have approved and authorized the carrying out of the Plan.

Judge Mayer by orders dated July 14, 1919, has authorized immediate payment of the moneys necessary to effectuate the exchange of old Bonds for cash and, on August 1st or as soon thereafter as the mortgage and the new Series A and Series B Bonds and certain legal formalities can be completed, the delivery of the moneys and new bonds necessary to effectuate the exchange of old Bonds for new Series A Bonds and of the Preferred Stock for cash and new Series B Bonds.

The undersigned as Readjustment Managers under said Plan and Agreement have declared said Plan and Agreement operative and hereby give notice thereof.

Holders of Certificates of Deposit for Bonds electing to take cash will therefore receive payment ($850 and unpaid accrued Interest to the date of payment not later than July 30, 1919) on or after July 17, 1919, upon surrender of their Certificates of Deposit, properly executed in blank and witnessed, to the Depositary issuing them, together with income tax ownership certificates for accrued Interest from July 1, 1919, and also income tax ownership certificates for the coupon maturing July 1, 1919, if such coupon has not previously been cashed. Holders of Certificates of Deposit for Bonds electing to take new Series A Bonds must in writing notify their Depositary thereof on or before July 30, 1919, and holders failing to give such notice will be deemed to have elected to take cash.

Notice will be given hereafter of the date (either August 1, 1919, or as soon thereafter as the bonds are ready) when delivery to Depositaries will be made of the new Series A Bonds in exchange (par for par) for old bonds not electing to take cash, and of $75 in new Series B Bonds and $20.75 in cash in exchange for each share of Preferred Stock.

Additional deposits of Bonds may be made with Bankers Trust Company, 16 Wall Street, New York, and of Preferred Stock with Columbia Trust Company, 60 Broadway, New York, depositaries, on or before July 30, 1919.

Readjustment Managers under the Plan and Agreement of Readjustment of Aetna Explosives Co., Inc., as amended June 30, 1919, with the approval of Judge Julius M. Mayer.

FOREIGN FIELD FOR SURPLUS COAL

British Mines Cut Production and U. S. Must Fill Deficiency

Working hours of British coal miners were reduced from eight to seven a day July 16 under the decision by the Coal Industry Commission and the effect of the July 16 change will be to reduce coal production in the United Kingdom about 70,000,000 tons a year. As this is approximately the amount of coal which England exported annually before the war, Britain will not only lose that much foreign trade but probably be short of enough fuel to provide for home industry. After next year's daily labor hours in mines may be reduced from seven to six.

The British coal situation means much to the United States because countries which have been importing coal from England will turn to this country for their supply. France, Italy, Sweden, Norway and Spain are to be counted in figure in the American coal market in the future. The United States will have a big market for its surplus coal.

MORE ZINC DEMAND AND PRICE ADVANCES

For the first time in months galvanizers are buying zinc and there has been a steady increase in domestic demand for a fortnight or more, the result is a price advance. It is now quoted at 7.60 cents a pound and expected to advance again soon. Producers now show commitments for future deliveries at current prices. A Joplin dispatch reads:

"With a rush the market for zinc ores swept upward this week, touching $47 a ton for second grades. Sterling ores at $45 to $48.50, the advance came steadily until Friday afternoon, the high point was reached, calamine ores sold at $25 to $27.50, while lead ores continued firm at $62.50.

"Lead ores were scarce and buyers were unable to get the tonnage at any price due to the shortage of production.

"Zinc production is also much below normal and the shipments this week will materially affect surplus stocks."

The coal situation is now controlled by labor. In England it proposes to work and produce less and is going to be paid higher wages. United States labor is a labor shortage at mines. The present coal output in this country is described as "dangerously low."

The following statement from Washington shows how production in this country has decreased this year compared with last, when mining was at high pressure owing to the war:

"The production of bituminous coal in the week ended July 5," the report reads, "is estimated at 7,469,000 net tons, an average per day for the five working days of 1,494,000 tons compared with an average per day of 1,576,000 tons in the previous week, as against 2,050,000 tons in the week ended July 6, 1918. The production for the calendar year to date, 230,361,000 tons, is nearly 74,500,000 tons less than in the corresponding period last year. The average daily production, considering only working days, has been about 800,000 tons less this year than last year."

For the July 5 week anthracite production is estimated at 1,408,000 net tons, compared with 1,735,000 in the corresponding 1918 week. Anthracite production this year to date is estimated to total 40,204,000 tons, or 16,600,000 less than for the corresponding period of last year.

American Zinc, Lead and Smelting Co.

The Directors of the American Zinc, Lead & Smelting Company have declared a regular quarterly dividend of one dollar and fifty cents ($1.50) per share on the preferred capital stock, payable August 1, 1919, to stockholders of record July 28, 1919.

F. W. RATCLIFFE, Secretary.

CAPITALIZATION

	Authorized	Outstanding
7% Preferred stock	$1,600,000	$1,600,000
Common stock	1,500,000	500,000*

*Balance of Authorized Common stock held in Company's treasury for conversion of Preferred stock.

The Needham Tire Company was incorporated under Massachusetts Laws in November, 1914, and is engaged in the manufacture of automobile tires, fibre soles and rubber heels, and owns its plant, consisting of 16 acres of very valuable land, with suitable buildings and a developed water power at Charles River Station, in the Towns of Needham and Dover, Mass. There is and can be no mortgage debt upon the Company's property except by vote of 75% of the Preferred share holders.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE

The proceeds from this issue will be used to retire an issue of $200,000 6% Two Year Notes due December 1, 1919, and to build an additional factory, now well under way, which will be completed by the first of September, including steam plant, heating system, power station, additional tire equipment and new mills, increasing the capacity of the plant 300% and to provide additional working capital incident to this increased capacity.

SECURITY

The Company will have no notes or outstanding liabilities other than current trade bills. This stock has preference as to assets and is preferred and cumulative as to dividends.

CONVERTIBILITY

A feature of this issue is that at offering price it yields 7.75 per cent., free of tax, and offers exceptional speculative possibilities through the privilege of conversion at any time into the Common stock on the basis of share for share.

EARNINGS

The Company has paid 7% on its outstanding Preferred stock since incorporation and for the last six months shows in addition earnings at the rate of 12% per annum on the Common stock.

The increased earnings as the result of this new financing will be several times the dividend requirements of the Preferred stock.

BUSINESS

The Company manufactures what is conceded to be one of the best tires on the market today, as well as operating a department devoted to fibre soles and rubber heels, which is rapidly growing.

An important authority in the automobile industry makes the statement that the year 1920 will require 14,000,000 tires for new cars alone and that the present tire production of the country is entirely inadequate to fill this demand.

The Company markets its product through prominent distributors in the principal cities of America, and for the last year has been unable to fill more than 50% of its orders; hence the need of the new factory and equipment which will be in operation by September 1.

LEGALITY

The legality of this issue has been passed upon and approved by Messrs. Barker, Wood & Williams of Boston.

Stock certificates are deliverable August 1, from which date dividends accrue to the purchasers.

Price—$90 per share, yielding 7.75%.

Criticism, Like Charity, Should Begin at Home

July 14, 1919.

Editor of the American:

Sir Edward Carson forgets more than his good manners when he says that the United States should mind its own business.

We would like to call Sir Edward Carson's attention to the fact that if the United States had minded its own business the Germans would now probably be in full occupancy of England and be demanding of England the oppressive indemnities and the territorial extensions which the Allies are now demanding of Germany.

If the United States had minded its own business and not taken any action in regard to the late European conflict, another German house than the house of Hanover would be heirs to the throne of England, or would hold England as a dependent province with Canada, Australia, Ireland and other parts of the British Empire separated from Great Britain and at liberty to conduct themselves in individual independence, or in such confederation as they might see fit.

Perhaps it would have been well for the United States to have minded its own business, but considering the fact that England chiefly benefited by the United States NOT minding its own business, it is not particularly good taste for Sir Edward Carson to be insolent and offensive in the matter.

Even minding its own business, the United States has a perfect right to be sympathetic with Ireland.

We are supposed to be a genuinely democratic government and people, favorable to democratic institutions and republican forms of government everywhere, solicitous for oppressed nations and for weaker countries held in bondage by the military force of stronger nations.

Such have been our national American ideals and policies since the foundation of this government, and these ideals have been ably expressed in words, if not in acts, by the President of the United States at various conferences attended by representatives of the British Government, to which sentiments these representatives of Great Britain assented, in words again, if not in deeds.

The sympathetic attitude of the United States toward Ireland is entirely within its moral rights and entirely within its legal rights, according to the laws of nations. The United States has not outraged law, as Sir Edward Carson did when he smuggled arms into Ireland and paraded his riotous following in open rebellion against the Government of England.

The citizens of the United States have not committed treason to their own country, as Sir Edward Carson did to his country, and Sir Edward Carson is not even telling the truth when he says that the American mission violated hospitality in Ireland, although that would have been only a violation of the proprieties and not the violation of fundamental moral and legal right which Sir Edward Carson committed.

America, despite Sir Edward Carson, will probably continue to exercise the rights of its citizens to sympathize with oppressed people everywhere, and particularly with the people of Ireland, for the simple reason that these people seem to be among the most unrighteously oppressed and unreasonably oppressed of all the peoples of the earth.

There is not one subject nation which the Convention of Allied Countries at Paris has released from the dominion of Russia or Austria or Germany or of any European power which can show the same incradicable and uncontrovertible record of oppression, of wilfully and stupidly unjust government as Ireland can show.

There is no other subject nation in all Europe that has lost half its population in half a century as the direct result of an unjust government, antagonistic in race and religion, which because of this racial and religious antagonism has taxed Irish industries out of existence because they competed with English industries, and has reduced the whole country practically to an agricultural basis and compelled the younger and more enterprising and adventurous of the Irish people to leave the land of their birth and seek elsewhere opportunities which should have been provided for them at home.

There is no imperial government on the face of the earth except England which has not considered its subject nations as integral parts of its empire and realized the self-evident proposition that the prosperity of the integral parts of the empire meant the prosperity of the empire as a whole. It is only England among the empires of the earth that has been willing to sacrifice the prosperity and unity of its empire to the gratification of its racial and religious hostilities.

The citizens of the United States and the Government of the United States have made a war in behalf of oppressed nations and in the interests of humanity and democracy and the particular principle of self-determination. Britain has been the chief beneficiary of this war, and has not only not released her own subject nations but, as a result of the war, has acquired NEW SUBJECT NATIONS over which to exercise her dominion.

If the people of the United States have not succeeded because of the failure of their representatives in Paris in releasing the oppressed nations under Great Britain's militaristic and imperialistic sway, they still feel that they have the right as citizens of this free republic to sympathize with these oppressed subject nations and to hope that they, too, in time may secure their independence as a justification for the American blood shed in this war in behalf of the liberties of the world.

The United States will mind its own business, but it will NOT abandon its democratic principles, its humanitarian sympathies and its international rights.

Finally, we suggest to Sir Edward Carson as a preliminary to his advising the United States to mind its own business that he advise Great Britain to mind her own business; to stop flooding this country with pro-British propaganda and anti-Irish propaganda and propaganda opposed to everything that Great Britain is opposed to; to stop distorting news and falsifying facts and misinforming our people as to the occurrences of the world; to stop interfering in our personal and domestic affairs by plotting to control cables and news associations and American newspapers in her own interests and to the disadvantage of our American people and our American Government.

More Truth Than Poetry

The Landlord Comes to Our House

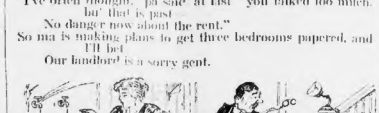
By S. E. KISER

THE other day the landlord sent us word that he must raise the rent,
And told us if we couldn't pay
He wished that we would let him know, and he'd call in a day or so
To find out what we had to say.
It seemed to make pa sick and sad; he rumpled up what hair he had,
And nearly lost his appetite;
But ma sat down and thought a while, and pretty soon she smiled a smile,
As though the future still was bright.

SO, when the landlord came, before he hardly got inside the door,
Ma started in to tell him things;
Whenever he would try to speak she kept on talking like a streak
And had him going round in rings.
She showed him places where the stairs would soon be needing more repairs,
The kitchen needed painting, too;
And then she pointed at a stain upon the ceiling where the rain
Had lately got to leaking through.

SHE led him up and down the halls and showed where cracks were in the walls
And where new paper should be hung;
His collar got all wet with sweat; he tried to speak, but couldn't get
A single chance to turn his tongue.
Ma told him she was glad he'd come; the plumbing was all out of plumb,
The furnace was a rusty wreck!
So pretty soon he sighed some sighs; there was a wild look in his eyes,
And beads were trickling down his neck.

AT last he saw his chance and fled, and, going down the steps, he said
He'd try to do the best he could;
And when the coast was clear and pa came from the cellar he and ma
Made motions they both understood.
"I've often thought," pa said at last "you talked too much, but that is past
No danger now about the rent."
So ma is making plans to get three bedrooms papered, and I'll bet
Our landlord is a sorry gent.



British Government's Reply to Irish Delegates

That and Many Other Interesting Articles in the Next Boston Sunday Advertiser

EDWARD F. DUNNE, former Governor of Illinois; Frank P. Walsh and Michael J. Ryan, American citizens, went to Paris some months ago as representatives of Americans of Irish birth or descent. The object of their journey was to present, if possible, the cause of Ireland at the peace conference.

While abroad the envoys visited Ireland on a tour of investigation. The resulting charges which they published in forty-seven sections, were read by every friend of Ireland in the United States. Charges of cruelty, brutality and injustice were among those preferred.

To these allegations the British government made, for a time, no response. Piecemeal declarations of denial have made their way into this country. But hitherto the official voice of Britain has been silent.

The Boston Sunday Advertiser will publish on Sunday, July 20, the complete text of the British reply to the American delegates' charges. The answer, signed by Ian MacPherson, Chief Secretary of State for Ireland, takes up, in detail, each of the forty-seven allegations and treats of them from the British standpoint. Friends of the Irish cause will find much to interest them in this document.

From the basement of a New York hotel hundreds of articles of baggage, checked before the war and never claimed, were taken out, cleaned of the accumulation of dust, and opened, prior to being sold.

The workmen had found many interesting things. But when they opened the pigskin suitcase and gave a brief look at the contents, they dropped the bag and ran. For in the bag was—a human body, or at least a large portion of one. Who the murdered person was, how he came to be there, who his assailant was—all these conjectures are argued pro and con in the Magazine Section of next Sunday's Advertiser. The authorities believe the man may have been slain by German agents as he was on the point of revealing some Teuton plot back in 1915. Read the story, and see if you can solve the mystery.

"Science and Your Soiled Collar." This is the title of one of the most useful and instructive articles in the Sunday Advertiser's magazine section next week. It tells the inside story of the public laundries—how they take the dirt out of the linen and clothing which you send to your laundryman—and also how sometimes the articles return looking as though they had been run through a buzz saw instead of a mere mangle. Science is going to change all that soon—and you will want to know the whys and wherefores of it.

Inklings and Thinklings

Speaking of fruits, we are all fond of peaches with cherry lips.

One of the happiest surprises that has ever come to any man was that which was experienced by Adam when he discovered that he could laugh.

In order to make movie villains look villainous, they compel them to wear silk hats with sack coats. The plan is a complete success.

The man who waits around for history to vindicate him will be in no condition to enjoy his vindication when he gets it.

Department of Agriculture says the price of meats to the consumer is too high. To counteract this, the D. of A. advises the consumer to eat larger quantities of meat. Just how this will benefit the old bankroll isn't clearly shown.

Ford, "Ignorant Idealist." Modern Torture Chamber. A Leper Loose—Never Mind.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1919.)

A leper is at large. His name is Nicholas Foniadakis, last seen in Philadelphia. But you needn't worry. Once this would have been a dreadful piece of news, and each man would have watched his neighbor for white spots on his skin. But there is no cause to worry now. The world has learned that soap, water and sensible food are more powerful than leprosy.

Henry Ford says, "I will admit I am an ignorant idealist." A simple, ancient admission. All idealists are ignorant in one way or another. They are, to begin with, ignorant of the fact that it doesn't pay to be an idealist. Also, to confess ignorance and realize it, is the beginning of wisdom. When they told Socrates he was to be honored as the wisest man in Greece, he said it was probably because he knew that he knew nothing.

And Montesquieu, whose "Spirit of Laws" is among the most learned books ever writen, tells you at the beginning that you cannot hurt his feelings by proving his ignorance. He knows about it already.

If the country had a few more "ignorant idealists" like Ford, dividing their millions with workmen, handing back to the government a gigantic fortune because unwilling to make profit by war, and at the same time giving to the public the best possible product at the lowest possible price, it would be a good thing for the United States.

Here's cheerful news. American soldiers can no longer be executed without the approval of the President. General March has ordered commanding generals to "refrain from further exercise of the power to order execution of a death sentence," until the President has had a chance to give his opinion. It would seem that going out to fight for his country should not deprive a man of his right to the usual trial and review of evidence.

Have you seen the "Iron Virgin," hollow statute of a woman made of steel, the inside lined with long, sharp spikes? Criminals of different kinds, including religious offenders, were put inside the body, which was closed, the spikes entering the living creature within. That was painful.

Have you seen the thumb screw, the rack that stretched the body, the boot that squeezed the feet, the wheel on which the bones were broken one after another, the brazier with red hot coals placed at the victim's feet?

Those instruments of "justice" and religious enthusiasm are out of date now. But you might see an excellent imitation of their tortures in the Tombs prison in New York, where men are carefully watched to keep them from killing themselves.

They are the miserable victims of drugs, locked away, unable to get the poisons to which their nerves have become accustomed. And those nerves inflict upon them tortures more horrible than any invented in the name of justice or religion in ages gone by.

Did you know that the torture inflicted on a drug victim, when the drug is taken away, is used by detectives in forcing confession of crime. Criminals as a rule are users of drugs, and police get information from criminals.

The easiest way to get it is to lock up the victim, show him cocaine, morphine or heroin, and say, "When you confess and enable me to prove the crime of your pal, you can have this."

Many a detective credited with marvelous sagacity did no more than hand through the bars a little cocaine, in return for which some tortured creature betrayed his comrade in crime. Torture of witnesses was made illegal by the French revolution, but it hasn't stopped.

Indian Gamesters

Although the natives of India do not operate on the stock market, they have adopted a unique form of gambling, for which the cotton market reports are responsible. Every day five quotations are cabled from New York announcing the cotton situation. The natives looked upon this as a direct invitation to them to establish a simple but none the less absorbing form of gambling. The gambling consists simply in guessing what the five figures will amount to, and the man getting nearest to the right amount takes the stakes.
